The U.S. plans to orbit a chimpanzee sometime this year, and perhaps a man soon after.

Strong Debate Stirs Legislature

By PETER BRUTON

Liberal leader Ray Perrault was left reeling from a double bludgeoning by both Social Credit and CCF ranks last night and then looked on as the CCF fought the government over labor-management relations.

The Liberal leader was given one of the most bitter callings-downs seen in the legislature for some time over his charges that B.C. had the worst labor-management relations in all of Canada and that investment counsellors were urging their clients not to invest in B.C.

NEVER UTTERED

Such an opinion should never have been uttered by a member of the legislature, said Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who termed the charges completely false. Mr. Perrault had done a great disservice to labor and management, charged CCF leader Strachan, who then turned on both Liberal and Socred ranks and said: "A plague on both your houses."

ABOUT TIME

Mr. Perrault began his speech by saying it was about time British Columbians faced facts about the very real crisis of lack of investment capital in the province today. It was simply not coming in as it had a few years ago.

"The government has failed to provide a proper climate of labor-management relations," he said. "No province in Canada has such a bad record."

"That's not true, that's not true," shouted CCF leader Strachan.

INVESTMENT MECCA

The Liberal leader said that from 1945 to 1956 B.C. was the investment mecca of Canada. This province was a choice investment area and there was a tremendous surge forward industrially.

"The situation today is less than enthusiastic in the centres of investment capital," said Mr. Perrault.

Investment leaders were warning capital to stay away from B.C. and it was a basic necessity to create a proper labor plan.

DELIBERATE ACTS

"There have been almost deliberate acts on the part of the government to infuriate labor and to alienate the working man," he said.

If the government really wanted to create jobs it should take those steps that were going to bring about labor-management harmony. This should include a full-time labor relations board, a productivity council, and the inclusion of labor representatives on overseas trades missions.

CLASS STRUGGLE

"The situation in this province today is the worst example of the phony class struggle of anywhere in Canada," he stated.

After the Liberal leader had resumed his seat, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he had been forced to take the unusual course of speaking during another minister's estimates.

NOT TO INVEST

It was an "astounding attitude of superficiality" when the Liberal leader tried to say that investment counsellors were recommending investors not to invest in B.C.

"This is not a fact," said Mr. Bonner, who doubles as minister of industrial development, trade and industry.

"This is not a responsible point of view," he added.

MEMBER OF HOUSE

"This is not an opinion which should have been uttered by a member of this House."

Neither was it true, said Mr. Bonner, that class warfare between labor and management existed in this province. There had, on different occasions, been sharp differences of opinion between management and labor.

But this does not amount to any extraordinary situation in comparison to any other community in North America," he said. "This is a vast disservice to labor and a vast disservice to industry and an astonishing affront to the flow of capital which has been

Starr, Pearson Cross Swords On Job Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's anti-unemployment program is a massive attack across the whole field of the Canadian economy, Labor Minister Starr said in the Commons Thursday.

But Opposition Leader Pearson described Mr. Starr's speech, at the opening of debate on the labor department's 1961-62 spending estimates, as "ludicrously inadequate."

The two squared off at the start of the session's main labor policy debate, brought on earlier than usual by the House leaders.

Commons leaders had these facts to chew on:

1. At mid-January, unemployment in Canada totalled 683,000, a post-war record for the month and up from 547,000 in January, 1960.

2. At Jan. 31, the Unemployment Insurance fund had a balance of $293,742,150, down from $445,885,387 a year earlier and $916,429,487 at Jan. 31, 1957, when the Liberals were still in office.

3. At March 3, this year's municipal winter works program had provided jobs for more than 100,000 workers, about double the employment provided by the program by that date last year.

4. The labor department's budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year opening April 1 is $136,497,933, of which $102,617,960 is to be voted for the insurance fund.

"Unemployment can only be cured and its consequences arrested by a massive attack across the whole field of the general economy, and this we are doing," Mr. Starr said.

FACE REALITY

Mr. Pearson replied that the government has failed to face reality in dealing with unemployment.

He said Mr. Starr's general review of the situation was a "ludicrously inadequate way of dealing with unemployment," and the inadequacy was discouraging and disheartening.

An authoritative source told reporters Thursday night the reminder was in a message Hammarskjöld dispatched to Kasavubu in Tananarive, Madagascar Republic, where the president and his premier, Joseph Ileo, are seeking a settlement on neutral ground with rival Congolese political leaders.

Meanwhile prospects for a curtailed session of the UN General Assembly, as proposed by United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, appeared to be fading because of Soviet insistence on a full-scale disarmament debate.

Mr. Pearson said the UN General Assembly was a "less than cordial" in contradiction of Berle's post-conference statement that he had "a cordial discussion with the president."

In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk insisted that the Quadros-Berle discussion was "extremely cordial and helpful."

According to diplomats here, the group rose to its feet at the end of a meeting and Berle, preparing to say goodbye, offered Quadros his hand. The president, they said, turned his back to Berle and walked rapidly from the room.

Happy Pills Give Courtroom Blues

NANAIMO—Happy pills on the road may mean sad motorists in court, RCMP Staff Sgt. Earl Sarriat of Nanaimo detachment warned yesterday.

Motorists convicted for driving while impaired by drugs face heavy fines, he said, pointing out that even tranquilizers and antihistamines can reduce alertness of a driver and turn him into a speed menace.

The staff sergeant was commenting on a B.C. Automobile Association report that dizziness and fainting spells may result from heavy use of pills.

Yesterday, a former Brazilian ambassador to Washington, Ernani Amaral Peixoto, said Berle was "the least indicated" person to send to Brazil because "once before, in 1945, he interfered in Brazilian internal affairs."

Peixoto referred to a speech by Berle, who was then ambassador to Brazil, recommending free elections. The late dictator, Getulio Vargas, was in power at the time. It subsequently was charged that Berle was partly responsible for the military ouster of Vargas.

Meanwhile, defying Brazilian press criticism of his foreign policy program, Quadros renewed instructions to Brazil's delegation at the United Nations to press for agenda inclusion of Communist China's membership application.

Important Step: Break Deadlock

LONDON (CP)—The importance of breaking the world deadlock on disarmament was stressed Thursday by Commonwealth prime ministers.

With all leaders except

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana contributing to the discussion, the second day of the Commonwealth conference was devoted to intricate detail to a topic all agreed to be the world's No. 1 problem. Nkrumah will probably speak today.

CANADA ON RECORD

Prime Minister Diefenbaker emphasized the need to resume disarmament negotiations as soon as possible. He placed clearly on record Canada's opposition to continuing nuclear tests.

There was general agreement among the leaders that somehow there must be agreement on a nuclear test ban at the conference resuming in Geneva March 21.

TWO REASONS

The ban would give a decisive impetus to general disarmament, and it was urgent because the time was approaching when new nations would join the nuclear ranks.

On disarmament generally, there were differing opinions as to the next stage. Some countries appeared willing to let Washington and Moscow do the talking; others including Canada, felt that there should be some UN influence on the discussions.

Millionaire Logger Praises Labor

Labor found a friend in millionaire logger and North Vancouver MLA Gordon Gibson, who last night told the legislature that organized labor had been a great help to him in solving problems when he headed logging companies.

He praised John Squire (CCF-Alberni) who he said sat on opposite sides of the bargaining table from him.

The Liberal MLA said he is fearful of the power that has gotten into the hands of a few concerns. He said he thought some of the big corporations were working against labor.

"Let's get away from monopolies and make more opportunity for more people," he said.

Drink, Drugs, Disease; Sin 'Desperate' B.C. Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—A University of British Columbia professor said in an interview Thursday a committee is needed to draw attention as dramatically as possible to the province's desperate social welfare problem.

Prof. James Richardson of the College of Education is chairman of a Unitarian church group which distributed 1,000 copies of a sermon by Rev. Phillip Hewitt dealing with the problem.

"We hope there will be enough reaction," said the professor, "to bring together interested parties to form a new committee."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Indian spirit dancing still flourishes on Southern Vancouver Island. It isn't a stunt to amuse tourists, but a ceremony of deep meaning, part of the old pre-white pattern of life which has survived.

There are some of the "winter dances" to which white people are admitted and other secret dances, which are supposed to be confined to members only.

Personally I have never attended or tried to attend any of the winter dances. I have always been afraid of intruding, or of seeming to treat my Indian friends as tourist sights.

Of course, the Indians sometimes like to have a joke at the white man's expense, and

Selection Is Honor

This dancing is confined to a limited brotherhood and sisterhood. Selection as a dancer has always been considered an honor.

It's like a surprise party. Everyone knows except the main performer. All the members of his family have been informed, but he (or she) has not.

However, the prospective dancer has been steeped in the tradition of which the spirit dancing forms a part. So, in a general way, he is prepared for what may happen.

When a group of people swoops down on a house and seizes a prospective dancer, the "victim" puts up a show

Tender Treatment

When the dancers go into a special place to undergo their initiation, there is no "torture," or anything like torture.

It is quite the reverse. The subjects are treated with the greatest tenderness and consideration, and after a time their "power" takes possession of them. It is supposed the spirit of some bird, animal, or even of a machine!

Then the dancer begins to sing his special song and to dance, with the power moving him.

And for all his life afterward, when winter dance time comes, the power will enter into his body, and he will go into a kind of trance, and sing his magic song.

House Debate

steadily coming into the province these many years.

"Members should not adopt tactics of pulling out a host of anonymous experts to back up any scattered opinions which may come to them," continued Mr. Bonner.

Liberal leader Perrault jumped to his feet and said he wanted to "refute" Mr. Bonner's statements.

"My honorable friend will spend the balance of his political career, short as it may be, in trying to refute what he has said tonight," said Mr. Bonner sharply. "The flow of capital in this province is a great deal better than in other areas."

"I'd like to state a point," said Mr. Perrault.

"Sit down," snapped Waldo Skillings (S.C.—Victoria).

"I expected this from the attorney-general," said Mr. Perrault.

"Give us your views on labor relations in Newfoundland," called Randolph Harding (C.C.F.—Kaslo-Slocan).

BEGAN SPEECH
CCF leader Strachan began his speech with an attack on the Liberal leader but soon turned round to blast the government on its labor policies.

Just as there was a clear division in the legislature between the government and the opposition so there was a clear division between management and labor, he said.

"I have been disturbed," said Mr. Strachan. "Back in 1955 I could see people turning one society into hating another section of society. . . . Once you tear down one section of society, the whole society suffers."

HATED SPILLING
"I saw hatred spilling across from the U.S. It was gnawing at the very vitals of our civilization,"

The CCF chieftain quoted what he said were anti-labor statements made by Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi in 1952.

"The minister was doing just as much damage to society as the Liberal leader did tonight," he stated. "A plague on both your houses."

ONE SECTION
Mr. Strachan charged that Social Credit belabored one section of society to benefit itself. Social Credit was branding itself as the right wing party of Canada, of replacing the Conservatives.

"Who wants to try?" interrupted Attorney-General Bonner.

"I am upset over the approach," said Mr. Strachan. "You just have to take labor and club it to pieces. . . . labor is blamed for every wrong in society."

Premier Bennett was next on his feet and said Social Credit favored no particular group but represented all citizens in every strata.

TORTURE BACK
"I have been attacked by Liberals who said I was putting big business on the torture rack," he said.

"I have punched a clock. . . . We have come up the difficult way as well," he said. "There is room for genuine differences of opinion."

Premier Bennett said business groups, managerial groups, provincial and federal government workers were all trying to get as big a piece of pie as possible. The government workers were all trying to build a larger pie so there would be more for everybody.

"I am proud we expanded this province," he said. "Proud we expanded employment in this province. . . . highways, new ferries. . . . new schools. When we came to power we had the support of the poorest of the poor. . . . that is why we will always think of that group first."

"It is the small people who voted for us," Premier Bennett said. "We have as much labor support for us as any other political party in the province."

AN OPEN LETTER FROM: Telephone TRinity 9-3230

B. C. Federation of Labour

2475 MANITOBA STREET, VANCOUVER 10, B.C.

TO THE PEOPLE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

In a few days it may be illegal for me to write you a letter like this. Premier Bennett, and his Social Credit Cabinet have introduced legislation (Bill 42), aimed at depriving individuals of their economic and political rights. This legislation was proposed at the request of the large corporations in this Province. Among other things, it even denies to trade unionists the right to decide how they will spend their own dues money.

But employer organizations are under no such restrictions; they still remain free to pursue their economic objectives by supporting the political party of their choice, without government restrictions or government sanctions. This is their right, we certainly do not question it. But what we are questioning is the singling out of the working people of our province as the target for discriminatory legislation.

The funds which corporations and employer groups use to attain their economic and political objectives come from the profits that we as consumers and workers provide. This use of cooperation money for political purposes, is provided without the approval or knowledge of their shareholders, their employees or consumers.

An overwhelming majority of Canadian newspapers, the Province being an exception, have condemned this latest example of class legislation by the Bennett Government. Those newspapers cite the fact that similar attacks on the labor movement in the past have brought about a suppression of civil liberties as evidenced in many totalitarian countries.

This vindictive and spiteful action of the Government against the working people of our Province, must be answered if we are to maintain political liberty and economic democracy in British Columbia. This challenge must be faced clearly and fearlessly by those who would defend the civil rights and political and economic liberty of the working people of this province.

Not content with this assault on political liberty, the government would through its edicts, proposals to other sections of the Labor Relations Act make a force of collective bargaining and encourage strike breaking.

Many of our affiliated unions have suggested a General Strike to protest this unwarranted legislative attack by the Government. I do not believe that a General Strike at this time is in the best interest of British Columbia, the labor movement or the cause of democracy.

We must, however, meet the hostility and truculence of the Bennett Government with positive action. This can be best accomplished through the New Party, which will rid British Columbia of the scourge of Social Credit and their repressive legislation. We in the Trade Union Movement will not rest until the democratic rights of our members are restored in order that they may determine their own affairs as they see fit.

Support the New Party now. Send donations to the New Party Founding Fund, Room 101, 537 West Broadway, Vancouver, and help protect democracy in British Columbia.

Sincerely and Fraternally,

Cataracts Can Be Lifted With Greatest Precision

By JOSEPH G. MOINER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Moiner: Can cataracts be prevented? What is the cause? Do cataracts cause blindness? Is it harmful to try to read even though vision is blurred?—Mrs. J. L.

This brings up some new questions about cataracts—that is, some points we haven't covered in earlier articles about cataracts.

The cause of the best-known type of cataract case, that which develops in older people, after 50 or later, is not known, and since we don't know the cause, we have no prevention. In this instance, it is usual for both eyes to be affected, although not necessarily to the same degree. It is quite common for one eye to be quite severely impaired while vision is still good enough in the other eye to be useful.

There are, however, other types of cataracts. In younger persons, the cause is usually congenital—some defect in the development of the eye, rather than something happening later.

An eye injury can cause a cataract in some cases. So can infection. In addition, some systemic disorders—diabetes, or disorders of the parathyroid gland—can be the cause.

As to dizziness—yes, because the disturbance in vision can contribute to that. We use a variety of our senses to keep our balance, and our eyes are important—even though, of course, it is possible to learn to keep your balance without sight, as blind people must do.

As to trying to read, perhaps no great harm results, but depending on the degree of development of the cataract, reading may be difficult.

It is sometimes possible to help a patient temporarily, however. Sometimes medications to widen the pupil of the eye may prolong the time during which there is enough vision for reading.

Another method which sometimes helps is the use of dark glasses. This is for the same purpose. The dark glasses shut out enough light so that the pupils of the eyes dilate. And that in turn permits a larger area through which the image of the words can penetrate through the cataract-dimmed lens of the eye.

These are, of course, temporary expedients to permit the patient to continue reading a little longer. In time the cataract will become more dense and must be removed surgically.

The bright thought to keep firmly in mind is that with modern surgery cataracts can be removed with the greatest precision. Further, surgery is the only effective treatment. There is nothing that diet, medication or anything else can do to prevent or "cure" cataracts. They must be removed.

Dear Dr. Moiner: How many cataracts are there in one baby's cracker?—Mrs. M. J.

About 15 cataracts.

Dear Dr. Moiner: Is there any validity to a remark I recently heard about aspirin poisoning? Being a chronic sufferer from arthritis, for which I take aspirin for relief, I am concerned.—M. G.

Aspirin poisoning is a very real thing, and I have mentioned it in this column on occasion. But if usually applied to massive doses taken accidentally by children, who find the "bottle of little pills" and take an enormous amount. Large doses are well tolerated in cases of arthritis and rheumatic fever without any "poisoning" effect, and my hope is that you will not let this reference to poisoning of children worry you. There's a vast difference between the amount taken by an adult with arthritis and a child gulping perhaps 25 or 30 or more tablets in a matter of minutes.

A Word of Caution

FOR a man who styles himself the champion of all African people and at the same time boasts that he enjoys the confidence of all the world's major leaders on both sides of the iron curtain, Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah gave a disappointing speech on The Congo problem before the UN General Assembly.

True, he soundly criticized the UN force for its failure to bring about law and order in The Congo, but in doing so he only repeated what others had said before him. He also conveniently overlooked the fact that his own troops, until recently, made up the strongest single fighting unit in The Congo UN Command.

Further to this, not once in his long diatribe against the inefficiency of the UN Command did the Ghana leader mention his personal contribution towards the ineffectiveness of the force brought about by his continuing threats to withdraw Ghana troops every time he disagreed with a UN field decision.

The only major point he attempted to make before the assembly was that African troops should be in the majority in the UN force—an apparent whittling down of his earlier demand that the command should be made up exclusively of African soldiers.

This, in itself, shows how far Dr. Nkrumah is removed from the facts as they are. The policy of having a greater part of the force African has been in existence ever since the command was formed.

Troops serving in The Congo UN army come from Ghana, Guinea, Morocco, Nigeria, Abyssinia, The Sudan, Mali and the United Arab Republic. Only a few come from outside Africa, and the only white troops are a handful from Canada, Sweden and Eire—who by all accounts are paying dearly for the color of their skins.

In considering Dr. Nkrumah's remarks, as uninspiring as they are, it would be wise to look into his personal motives—motives and desires he has never gone to any pains to hide. A study of his speeches and activities over the past two years reveals that he has but one ambition—that of uniting all Africa south of the Sahara under his rule.

Having completed the establishment of a totalitarian rule in his own country he is now looking for further fields to conquer and will ally himself to anyone in attaining this personal objective.

All too often the Western world has regretted too late some hasty decision to jump on the bandwagon of the latest self-described "freedom-seeker," only to find it has been instrumental in helping create a dictatorship that is anathema to its democratic principles.

Such expensive lessons should be remembered in any dealing with Dr. Nkrumah.

One Argument Answered

IT HAS been said recently in Ottawa and Victoria, and in tones which suggested calamity, that Premier Bennett's reference to the energy board of the Columbia River project had imperilled the whole scheme. How an undertaking requiring from five to nine years to complete could be seriously set back by a few months study by an independent appraiser was difficult to see, but so ran the criticism.

One main argument was that the United States might back out of the scheme if B.C. didn't sign up right away.

Well, that has been answered. A hearing by the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee saw various senators, governors and other representatives unanimously endorse the treaty, receive word from the Secretary of the Interior that it had the support of the U.S. president and his cabinet, and determine that the dispute between James Bay and Ottawa was a purely domestic matter. The committee chairman envisaged no difficulty in having the treaty ratified by Congress.

So much for that. It was interesting to note also that the Interior secretary said the U.S. had done "a good hard job of bargaining."

Premier Bennett would probably say, and who could deny him for so saying, that he is equally bent on doing a good hard job of bargaining with the federal government on the Columbia development. He cannot fairly be indicted for this. In fact did he make a poor bargain his present critics would be the first to assail him.

The suspicion will not down of course that Mr. Bennett really prefers the Peace River project and he is perhaps vulnerable on this account. He makes no secret of his belief that both projects are needed and can go on simultaneously during next decade. The midsummer report of the energy board should clear up this point, as well as help to clarify the Columbia situation.

B.C. Hydro is actually on the Columbia job with preliminary engineering studies and the Bennett government is fairly well committed to this scheme notwithstanding its quarrel with Ottawa, mainly political, over the details. It could probably not drop the Columbia even if it wanted to; not without serious adverse reaction and the premier is usually careful of his political fences.

At any rate the argument that the intervention of the energy board would imperil the scheme is shown to be without foundation.

A Maestro Dies

THE field of opera and symphony, and in fact the whole world of music, has suffered a severe loss by the death of Sir Thomas Beecham. It might be said indeed that the world in general will miss him greatly, for he entertained it as well as enlightening it.

It is probably a characteristic of famous conductors that they are eccentric and filled with mannerism, a factor which may draw attention but also serves to infuse audiences with enthusiasm for the works they present. This is part of their genius. Sir Thomas had his fill of both, and in addition a sparkling wit and a pungent pen and tongue which added to his celebrity as a maestro of the baton.

His contribution to music has been immense, both as conductor and composer, and to his constant dedication is due much of the popular interest in operatic and symphonic works. He brought classical music to a vast public and his recordings will remain as a tangible and valuable legacy for all time. There was no doubt of his eminence as one of the foremost interpreters of Mozart and of the wide range of his repertoire, or as the greatest British symphonic conductor of this century.

Sir Thomas Beecham may be said to have given rather than received. He devoted the vast fortune to which he fell heir to use in the promotion of musical culture and education, unsparingly and with a genius that puts his name high on the list of notables in the realm that made him famous.

Interpreting the News

More Intelligent Approach

By JOSEPH MacKENZIE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE new United States administration is being credited with a good deal more political sense than its predecessor in its courteous reception of visiting President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana.

Christian Herter, then U.S. state secretary, said last Sept. 23 that Nkrumah had followed a line akin to the Soviet Union in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly about The Congo and the machinations of imperialism in Africa.

This caused surprise, to say the least, at a time when the U.S. was supposed to be striving to understand the aspirations of new African countries and make friends with them.

Now Nkrumah has addressed the UN again, and it was known long beforehand that he would advocate policies for The Congo sometimes at variance with those of the U.S.

Nevertheless President Kennedy made a point of inviting the Ghanaian to the White House and Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the UN, issued a statement welcoming his "interest and concern" in the Congo problem.

Whether Kennedy acted on advice from Stevenson, or whether Stevenson acted on orders from Kennedy, is not known. But the upshot is that Stevenson is generally credited with adopting a more intelligent approach to the new African countries than his predecessors.

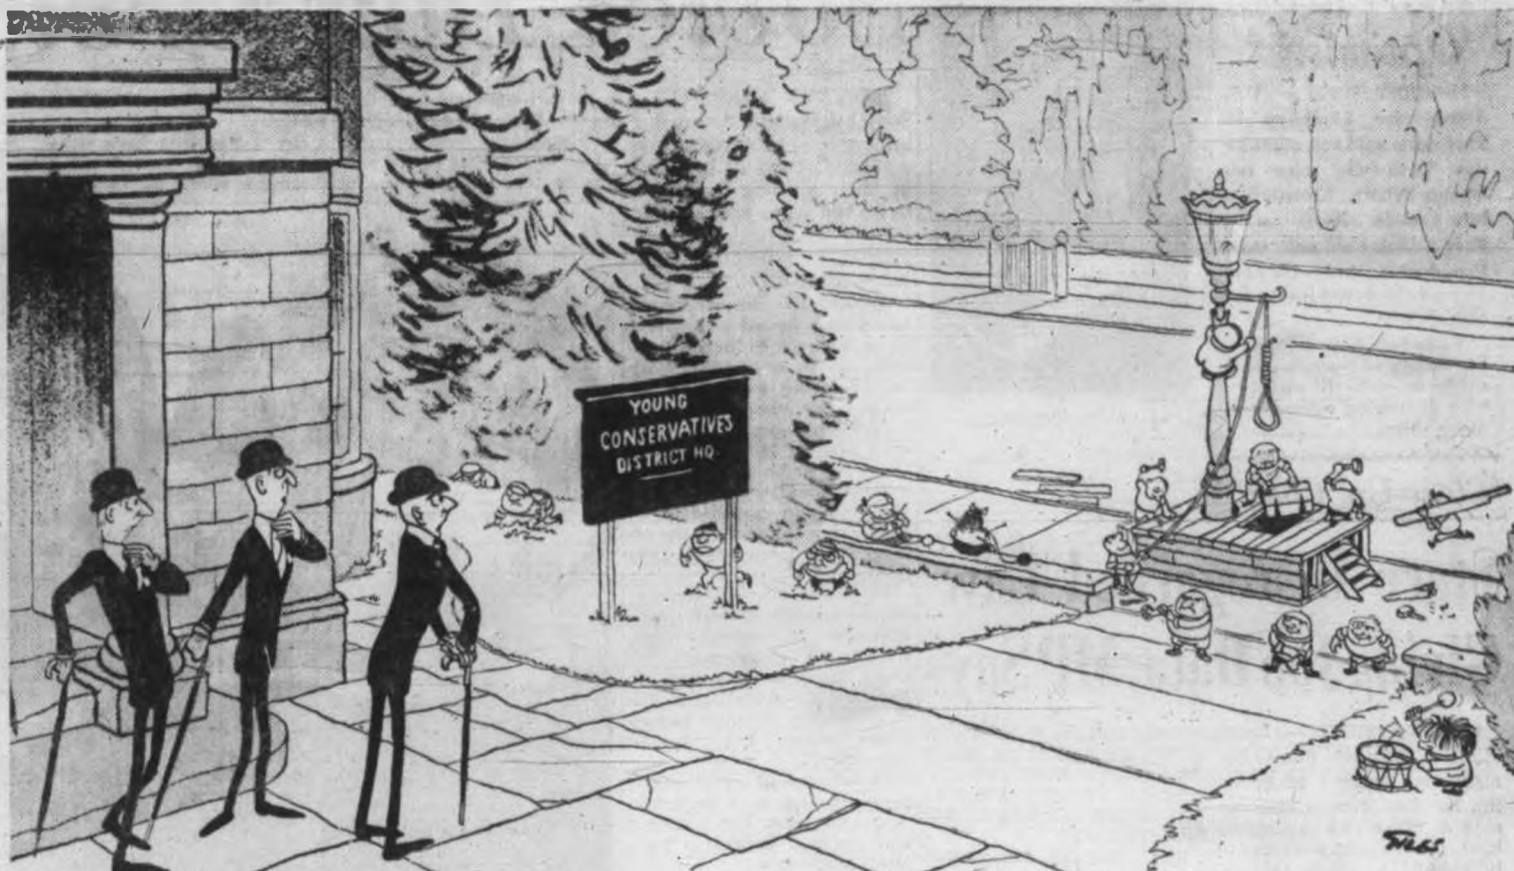

Stevenson, for instance, instantly reacted favorably to a suggestion by Liberia that the Security Council consider holding a meeting in The Congo or some neighboring country if that might help the crisis there. He even made a tentative offer that the U.S. Air Force would fly council members to Africa.

Nothing has come of this so far, but it made a favorable impression on African delegations.

A somewhat similar suggestion was made at a Security Council session last year and was opposed by former U.S. ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge but pushed by the Russian representative.

Stevenson has been a tremendous worker behind the scenes.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

THREE Russian horses are on their way from Moscow to try their legs at the high jumps of the Grand National. They are creatures quite innocent of national feelings or the cold war but they have become the centre of controversy. This is the world being devilled by ideology.

The racehorses wouldn't know Karl Marx if he suddenly appeared among them, or Mr. Khrushchev either, and so can't be blamed for the rumpus arising around their rumps. All they know, presumably, is that when the bell rings or the gates go up—or whatever it is that starts racehorses on their way—they are supposed to gallop like the very deuce and leap like a fairy over any obstacles that confront them.

And, giving racehorses their due, that is what these splendid animals do; or try to anyway.

But the Aintree handicappers have saddled the Russian horses with a maximum lead to carry and the Muscovites about this is unfair. It is no use then pointing out that some British horses have been equally handicapped and that unknowns are always given a heavy penalty, probably because dark horses are suspicious horses.

In that they might win the race, of course, because their quality is unknown and thus improperly assessed.

Soccer teams can go to Britain from Russia and smarm the British eleven down but the fans have got used to this and conclude that Karl Marx has nothing to do with it. Such results have become part of the general scene. No one raises an ideological banner when the Moscow Dynamos either win or lose; nor, one supposes, will they be any racial trouble in Vancouver this summer if the Real Madrid team from Spain plays there.

It would have to be very muted anyway, because it is a safe bet in advance that they would win.

Unlike the soccer realm, however, or that of the ballet or other artistic offering where performance gets its reward without racial or political bias, horse-racing hasn't yet absorbed the universality of the business.

Canada is currently engaged in a similar ideological rivalry. True enough in this case it is not a contest of words—although somehow there are always plenty of them too—but an engagement embracing nothing more lethal than a round piece of rubber and some hockey sticks. I will grant you the latter can be wielded somewhat robustly, albeit if real wars were settled this way instead of by nuclear fission or fusion or whatever it is that makes an atom bomb tick, hockey might well be hailed as the saviour of mankind.

But here also the coloring of ideology pokes its nose in. The players on either side, like the racehorses, can be excused, but national controversy clings to their rivalry too. Unlike the horses the players are aware of it but it is not their fault.

This piece was written before the game with Czechoslovakia last night but that game notwithstanding it is the tussle on Sunday that is the criterion. Then Canada meets Russia with likely enough the championship at stake, and in this particular hockey tournament these are the two countries which symbolize the West and the East.

The Russian horses are new to the Grand National and are outsiders who might upset the balance, as it were. The Russian hockey players are not quite so new but they are comparatively so and thus Canadians feel affronted when they are beaten at their own game by outsiders.

I rather suspect we will have to get used to the progressive development of Russian hockey skill, just as Britain got used to the sober skills of continental nations, including Russia. There will come a day probably when the Russians can match our best.

Notwithstanding this philosophy I am of course hoping the Canadian team wins, while at the same time regretting that sports rivalry cannot just be left as sports rivalry, per se.

Reaching the U.S. Public

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN his initial attempt to prepare the way for a possible new strategy and for a serious attempt at nuclear disarmament, President Kennedy is discovering how difficult, dangerous and uncertain is the problem of communication in this field.

At his press conference the President was required to spend a part of that valuable time trying to quiet down the uproar over a State Department position paper suggesting that greater reliance be placed on conventional rather than nuclear weapons. In the same way, earlier, he had to tidy up the mess left behind by confused reports from the Pentagon as to whether there was or was not a missile gap.

But it is the broader problem of reaching the American public that worries the President and his close associates. The deliberate news leak seems, from the White House perspective, to have been replaced by the news ooze. The stuff is there just under the surface and if it is not properly channeled it oozes to the top. The difficulty is in the channeling process.

The President has given a great deal of thought to what follows nuclear disarmament, which might start with agreement on a nuclear test ban. One of the major objections to disarmament in the nuclear field is that this would leave the Soviet Union with vastly superior manpower. The forces of the Communist bloc, particularly if China were included, would sweep across the world without nuclear deterrent, so the argument runs.

What is more, those who adamantly oppose disarmament insist that the Communists will always have powers of infiltration and subversion by which they can bring down governments friendly to the West. How, then, to counter this threat? That and many other related questions the President has been pondering in connection with the beginning effort of disarmament. He understands that if you are going to disarm—with acceptable inspection and control—then the public must be convinced that the West is not defenceless.

To try to prepare the way, the President himself undertook recently an experiment in channeling that was not entirely successful. He used a long-familiar White House and governmental technique—a planted news story telling of an immediate speedup in the training of guerrilla warfare specialists in the Army. These specialists at Fort Bragg would then in turn train the troops of friendly powers in how to resist infiltration and rebel attack.

But the report of the planned increase in guerrilla forces, as carefully planted in a Republican newspaper, did not have the expected effect. While it inspired further interest among those especially concerned with defence, the public response was negligible and the relation of the move to eventual disarmament was not evident.

In still another phase of the troubling and complex problem of defence and disarmament, the President is feeling somewhat disillusioned. This, as he indicated in his press conference, concerns the McCloy speech. As head of the administration's disarmament effort, McCloy seemed to reject any consideration of the Soviet proposal for complete and total disarmament in a four-year period.

The Packshop

Whimsical Escape

By GREGORY CLARK

NO other emporium has the singularity of a sporting goods store, and especially a fishing tackle shop. Even great massive department stores in the same city block have quite distinct characters, tones and atmospheres. You won't find the same mood or quality in any two shoe stores or jewelry stores or even butcher shops.

But there is a festive and chummy quality about fishing tackle shops that is the same all over the world, and even in the off-season. There is humor, irony, wit, skepticism and a dry salty candor in all of them. You are half way fishing when you enter a fishing tackle shop.

The first thing to catch my eye on entering my favorite tackle shop yesterday was a box of interesting-looking objects on the counter, set forth for all to behold. A simple sign on it said—$1.

I picked up one of the articles. It was red in color, and had two curiously curved handles. The business end of it appeared to be a pair of off-centre pliers. A more mysterious-looking piece of sporting goods I have never seen.

"What are these?" I asked the clerk. "You tell us," he said, "and you can have one for nothing."

They didn't know what they were. No customer had been able to guess either. But their presence on the counter, meeting your eye the moment you entered, was an example of the spirit of whimsical escape that animates fishing tackle shops.

The National Gallery

Lorne and a Nude

(From The Ottawa Journal)

MEMBERS of Parliament from inland fastnesses of British Columbia—"I come from way out in the jungle," said Mr. Henderson of Cariboo—and other non-city areas joined in the debate on the National Gallery estimates last week, perhaps for the first time.

To have 14 members in such a debate was a contrast to days when the Gallery estimates were hurried through as fast as the items for combating communicable diseases in animals.

What was most remarkable was the obvious interest of members in the National Gallery as a national possession and their pride in its proper use and maintenance.

Mr. Pickersgill, who was the responsible minister when the decision was made to proceed with the Lorne Building to house Canada's art collection, has seen a Liberal vision fulfilled in the Gallery and no one in the Commons denies him a proper satisfaction in this.

MPs have a sense of public interest and now know that to pose as the responsible minister when the decision was made to proceed with the Lorne Building to house Canada's art collection, has seen a Liberal vision fulfilled in the Gallery and no one in the Commons denies him a proper satisfaction in this.

Mr. Herridge of Kootenay West capitalized on this with his reference to some Ottawa people being anguished (we were not) because a large picture of the Marquis of Lorne owned by the government was not on display. Mr. Herridge said the small painting of Lorne now in the Gallery was set in close proximity to an attractive nude.

As Mr. Small of Toronto observed later, with an air of wonder, crowds in an art gallery may gather before landscapes or dull still-lives instead of nudes. But the charm of a gallery is that it can have nudes and Lornes in Highland dress and landscapes of the Cariboo and it encourages people to drift about and enjoy whatever takes their fancy.

Art snobs will say that of course in artistic MPs would talk of a nude and an historic figure while ignoring the more significant works in the Gallery.

To our way of thinking it is good to get members interested in art and the Gallery at all. And if the Marquis of Lorne and a nude are introductions to art, who is to complain? Not we are sure, the minister responsible to Parliament for Gallery reports. Mrs. Fairclough, nor Dr. Compton, the director, nor anyone who believes that tastes in art have a way of developing as appreciation grows.

. . . By Giles

The President may ultimately come to agree with that view. But his feeling, according to close associates, and as he implied in his public response, is that if such a definite statement were to be made it should come only after the new administration had thoroughly and completely examined the question and had come up with a detailed position of its own. No such position is anywhere near in sight. To the White House, and to associates, McCloy explained that he had thought his weekend remarks would not be widely reported.

But in the White House view that is not good enough. It indicates a trusting innocence, as does the Dean Rusk State Department explanation of how reporters got word of the Rusk position paper on nuclear versus conventional strategy.

'Peace Corps'

Britain Has Its Own

By ROBERT STEPHENS

SINCE President Kennedy announced the formation of his "peace corps" of young civilian volunteers for work in underdeveloped countries, press inquiries from both sides of the Atlantic have ruffled the usual sedate calm of the Royal Commonwealth Society in Northumberland Avenue in London.

Three small rooms on the fourth floor of the society's building house the headquarters of Voluntary Service Overseas, a British organization founded three years ago which, with the help of its lively organizer, Mr. Alec Dickson, has caught the imagination as a British pioneer of the work President Kennedy is now trying to start.

Voluntary Service Overseas is in fact one of many British and international organizations which together constitute an already existing "peace corps" of impressive numbers and enthusiasm.

Apart from the vast amount of work done by religious bodies and voluntary societies such as the relief organizations, there is, for example, International Voluntary Service, the British branch of the Service Civil International, the work camp movement founded 40 years ago by the Swiss engineer, Pierre Ceresole.

Voluntary Service Overseas is nearest to the Kennedy conception in its concentration on youth, its official recognition and the length of time its volunteers spend overseas.

It concentrates on sending British young men and women to Commonwealth countries for a year or more, usually in the year between leaving school and going to university or into the services.

The volunteers go to work on education and social service projects sponsored by local governments or voluntary services. Their fares are paid by VSO and sympathetic shipping companies sometimes help with their passages. They receive no pay but get their keep and a little pocket money.

In the first year 15 volunteers went overseas, chiefly to West Africa and Sarawak, territories where Mr. Dickson, who is a former Colonial Service official and head of the UNESCO technical assistance mission in Iraq, had personal connections. Now there are 89 volunteers spread over many Commonwealth countries, from the Falkland Islands and British Guiana to the Solomon Islands in the Pacific.

After initial scepticism, governments overseas are now asking for volunteers and offering to support them. Two volunteers went to the Falkland Islands after the government there had advertised in vain for two itinerant teachers to travel round on horseback and by boat to teach at isolated farms.

Governments now see the youth of the volunteers as being of a special asset. They are able to make contact, and work more easily with, young people who in many of the less-developed parts of the Commonwealth are the key to progress and national feeling.

Don't Kid About It—It's Happening!

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John Diebold, who christened the age of automation and then tied a meteoric career to it, told congressmen: "Don't kid about Buck Rogers. It's happening."

Diebold, 34-year-old president of an international string of management service consulting firms, appeared before a House subcommittee investigating unemployment problems caused by machines that run themselves or make other machines.

His admonition came after one of the lawmakers referred to "these Buck Rogers machines."

"This is the future," Diebold said. "We are unquestionably leading in the field... but we are going to have to run very fast indeed to stay ahead."

Diebold, who has engineering, economics and business degrees, described a coming world of push-button libraries, business machines that talk to each other by long-distance telephone, and automatic reading machines that will instantly translate Russian to English.

But when he suggested the government actively encourage the arrival of this era, he lost his congressional audience.

The lawmakers were far more interested in hearing about ways to find jobs for workers who have been ousted from their employment by the automation already in effect. In this regard, Diebold said the transition to the age of automation had to be made

"smoothly, to make sure individuals aren't hurt in the process."

The answer, he said, was retraining of workers who are replaced by machines, and almost as important, continuation of their education. Diebold said no one in the future can expect to get his entire education and then find a job that will require no more learning.

But, he said, neither government nor industry seemed interested in finding out what workers in what jobs will have to be retrained, or what skills they should be given. He called that the first job.

Diebold explained how he happened to coin the word automation.

"Actually, it was a result of my poor spelling," he said. "I was writing a paper in graduate school at Harvard and meant to use the word 'automatization.' But it came out 'automation.'"

Indians Cite Charter

A northern British Columbia Indian tribe yesterday cited a 200-year-old proclamation by King George III to back up a claim for compensation for lands and resources involved in a forest management licence granted Columbia Cellulose Company in the Nass River area.

The claim was made in a brief prepared for the provincial government by the Nishga tribal council, whose president is Frank Calder, CCF member of the legislature for the northwestern riding of Atlin.

The tribe claims to have aboriginal rights to the 6,400 square miles of the Nass River valley between Stewart and Terrace in the area northeast of Prince Rupert.

Its brief quoted a royal proclamation issued by King George III in 1763 which recognized the right of the Nishga Indian nation to occupy and use the land.

No Surrender on Berlin, China

U.S. to Hold Line

WASHINGTON (UPI)—State Secretary Dean Rusk Thursday reaffirmed the United States' intention to hold the line on Red China and West Berlin while still trying to make progress in disarmament negotiations with Russia.

These were the main points brought out at his press conference.

He indicated the U.S. plans to open a drive among friendly nations to line up opposition to Communist Chinese membership in the UN.

He affirmed U.S. determination to stay in West Berlin and not be pushed out by the Russians.

He said that if the U.S., Russia and Britain—to meet for new disarmament talks March 21 in Geneva—want to continue a ban on nuclear bomb testing he is sure such an agreement can be reached.

Rusk indicated deep concern over the possibility of Communist China's admission to the UN. A serious situation would arise if Communist China were allowed in and Nationalist China ousted.

Rusk said he plans "constant consultation" with other countries between now and next autumn's UN session, a move designed to make the U.S. stand on the question clear to other friendly nations.

On West Berlin, Rusk's theme was "no surrender."

BROAD SITUATION
The freedom of Berlin's people must be protected. The Berlin problem had to be considered in the light of the broad German situation and this situation was under general review.

Turning to disarmament, Rusk said he hoped "some real headway" could be made. Without mentioning what stand the new U.S. administration has taken on a ban of nuclear bomb testing, he said he was sure the moratorium could be continued if Britain, Russia and the U.S. want it continued.

OTTAWA — CCF leader Hazen Argue said last night the government was pleading it could not deal effectively with the unemployment problem because it could not deal with "the love life of Canadians."

Mr. Argue told the Commons that Finance Minister Donald Fleming had claimed that one of the reasons there was so much unemployment today "is because of the wartime babies."

"He said there were too many wartime babies and they are now old enough to be on the labor market. He said: 'We cannot deal with the love life of Canadians and the new citizens we have who are coming of working age.'"

"We asked," Mr. Argue added, "Why so many people are on the unemployment rolls? Too many pregnant women drawing unemployment insurance who should not be receiving it," was the answer."

Education Parleys Urged

Round-table talks among municipal leaders, teachers and government to see where B.C. is going in education and how education improvements may be financed were called for in the legislature yesterday by Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan).

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said first of such round-table talks has already been called. This Easter all B.C. school superintendents will be called to Victoria for a concentrated discussion of the Chant report, he said. He said they have been preparing for the meeting for six weeks.

Mr. Harding said before implementation of some sections of the Chant report are carried out, the money problem must be solved.

"As soon as we improve or add to the system, we must pay more," he said.

Mr. Harding said first reactions to the Chant report were good, then caution after study, and today there is some good sound opposition to certain sections.

'Jobs Going Begging' For Trained Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian schools, with their emphasis on the status symbol of academic learning are "out of whack" with the needs of business and industry, a Senate committee was told Thursday by A. V. Pigott, associate director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education.

His solution: A new outlook by the public that would "honor the blue collar" and get unemployed people out of the rut caused by their lack of skills.

"Despite unemployment, there are jobs going begging for lack of trained workers," he said.

"When 10 per cent of our people are out of work, it does not mean that there are no jobs open. Even a quick survey shows a surprising number of opportunities."

Capital Spending Up $100,000,000

OTTAWA (UPI)—Planned capital expenditures for all sectors of the economy during 1961 total $8,336,000,000, about $100,000,000 more than in 1960, according to a federal government report made public yesterday.

Trade Minister George Hees, who tabled the report in the House of Commons, said the proposed expenditure "represents a continuation of the high and relatively stable level of capital spending realized in recent years."

Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson said the planned expenditures were not high enough to create jobs at the same rate as the labor force was expanding.

Socialist leader Hazen Argue said the forecast in capital outlay pointed to "no major upturn in the economy," not even enough to provide jobs for those now unemployed.

The estimates were contained in a report entitled "private and public investment in Canada outlook for 1961," an annual work turned out by the trade department.

It forecast new construction at about $5,689,000,000, or four per cent more than the $5,487,000,000 spent in 1960.

"Both housebuilding activity and non-residential construction will share in this larger program," it said. "Planned outlays for new machinery and equipment are moderately below the levels of last year, and call for expenditures of $2,647,000,000 for this purpose, compared with $2,713,000 spent in 1960."

Outlays for social capital purposes, including health and educational facilities and all types of government improvements, were expected to be about 11 per cent greater than in 1960.

"Estimates from business firms suggest a moderate overall reduction in their capital spending in 1961," it said. "This reduction is largely concentrated in the transportation industry, with requirements for both permanent facilities and equipment being substantially lower."

Trade

Canada Deeper In Red

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's indebtedness to foreign investors piled higher last year as the country's international trade in goods and services went $1,270,000,000 into the red.

Some $875,000,000 in foreign long-term capital flowed into the country to finance part of the overall trade deficit, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Of that foreign investment a record $680,000,000 went into direct investment in foreign-controlled enterprises—most of it into oil, natural gas and mining industries.

Police Ordered: No Funnies

MONTREAL (UPI)—The city administration yesterday ordered Montreal policemen to stop reading comics on duty.

The ban, announced by executive committee chairman Lucien Saulnier, said that besides banning comics "at all times" as reading matter for the city's 2,000 policemen, the order forbade police leaving their beats to buy newspapers.

TRUCK OWNERS SAY IT FOR US!

Our operating costs have dropped considerably since putting these units into service. Our salesmen report much less fatigue due to the brand new torsion bar front suspension. With this new type of suspension both front and rear, we notice less load shifting, in turn this means less breakage to us which is very important to our operation.

The New torsion spring front suspension and the power steering really makes this truck handle and steer like a car—in my opinion the new torsion front spring set up is a real advancement in trucks. This Chevrolet Tandem is a real rugged work horse and tops for my money in all respects.

Portable Radios Danger in Planes U.K. Pilots Told

LONDON (Reuters) — An airplane passenger's portable radio can endanger the aircraft's operation, the British aviation ministry told airline pilots yesterday.

Careful Eye Being Kept On New Party

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — The Guardian says the growth of Canada's New Party is being watched warily by the strategists of Canada's two older parties.

"For in Canada the appearance of a third party operates as a red light," the newspaper says. "It means that the two traditional parties have failed in their efforts satisfactorily to emulate the Republicans and the Democrats."

They have also fallen down on their job of catering to all major interest groups and have left the general public unconvinced that between them they span the political spectrum," the paper says.

In a circular to pilots, the ministry said "experience has shown that certain types of portable electrically-operated apparatus, such as radio receivers and tape recorders, may, if used in an aircraft in flight, emit radiations capable of interfering with the functioning of an aircraft's radio-navigation equipment."

TAKE STEPS

Operators of aircraft are advised of the need to take steps to ensure that passengers' electrical apparatus is not used at times when interference which might be caused by it could affect the safety of the flight.

Miniature radios could interfere with or distort the signals received by a plane from a radio beacon or from an airport it was approaching and give a false impression of its course, the ministry said.

Look at Flyers

George Isn't Going For Panic Button

Coach George Agar is the first to admit that the chances of Victoria Cougars making the Western Hockey League playoffs are getting slimmer by the moment, but he isn't ready to hit the panic button yet.

"We've got to improve and start winning—preferably to night against Spokane," he said. "But if the pressure is on us, it's even worse on Edmonton. After all, we are two points ahead with a game in hand, and they can't afford to make mistakes any more than we can."

Agar is hoping the Cougars will stop making mistakes tonight at Memorial Arena, when they play the Cougars at 8:30. If they don't, they're liable to find sixth place a little crowded by 10:30.

While the Cougars are toiling against Spokane, Flyers will be playing Winnipeg's last-place Warriors in Edmonton. A combination of a Cougar loss and an Edmonton victory would mean a sixth place tie.

If both get a winning streak going, the whole thing could be decided March 28 when the Flyers play a call to Memorial Arena. Cougars would feel much more comfortable if they were ready for that visit with a bigger lead.

Speaking Briefly

British Vote to Open Wimbledon Tennis

Another major step toward the seemingly inevitable open tennis tournaments was taken yesterday when the British Lawn Tennis Association passed a resolution that the 1962 Wimbledon championships be open to professional players.

The council of the association will forward the following recommendation, passed by a 65-5 vote, to the International Lawn Tennis Federation meeting in Stockholm July 12.

"That as an experiment the championships at Wimbledon and other official championships if desired, be allowed to accept entries from professionals as well as amateurs in 1962."

In Montreal, Lorne Main, tournament chairman of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, called the move "a good thing" but added his association would probably wait until the results of the first open tournament at Wimbledon before deciding whether or not to follow suit.

MONTREAL, FANs will say a reluctant goodbye to quarterback Sam Etcheberry June 1 with a $10-a-plate dinner, and they're scooping up tickets as though they were for the Grey Cup game. Etcheberry will play his football this season for St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

... Jerry Lucas, 6'8" star of Ohio State university, has been named college basketball's player of the year. ... Arnold Palmer, last year's biggest money winner in professional golf, is back on top again this year with $18,600 from eight tournaments.

... Chuck Connors, last of baseball's famed clan has sold his 48 per cent stock in Chicago White Sox to Chicago attorney Lloyd G. Harold. ... Ottawa's Grey Cup champion Rough Riders will show a net profit of between $25,000 and $30,000, according to figures released yesterday.

... B.C. LIONS have signed import tackle Bill Eureka, a 6'2", 225-pounder from University of Colorado. He is the sixth import lineman signed by the club to date. ... Edmonton Eskimos have signed end Bob Morrison of Appalachian State

Too Much Talking Cuts Down Walking

NEW YORK (AP)—What do you do when a couple of ladies, playing a golf match, get so busy talking that they forget to play two holes?

The United States Golf Association says this actually happened in a tournament and its rules committee was asked for an opinion—one of the 700 such queries made during 1960.

The ladies, after finishing their match, discovered to their horror and embarrassment that they had skipped two holes. They told the tournament committee. The tournament committee sent them back on the course to play the holes.

The USGA held that the tournament committee's decision was final. Actually, the USGA added, both ladies should have been disqualified for failing to play the stipulated round.

Walker Inman Leads Pensacola Golf Open

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Walker Inman, making his first start of the year on the pro tour, barreled home late Thursday with a four-under-par 68 to grab the opening-round lead in the $20,000 Pensacola open golf tournament.

The 31-year-old pro held a two-stroke edge over three players, George Bayer, Dave Ragan and Jimmy Clark. Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, limped home with a 73.

Bunched in back of the leaders were Jack McGowan, Gerald Sota and Marty Furgot, all with 71s. And trailing them with 72s were Tommy Jacobs, Bobby Nichols, Don Fairfield, Tommy Bolt and Dow Finsterwald.

Bernie Booms Back Into Running Only One Goal Behind Mahovlich

One of the most hair-raising National Hockey League finishes in years was set up last night as Montreal Canadiens barged back into a first-place tie with Toronto and Bernie Geoffrion zeroed in on Frank Mahovlich and the league scoring record.

A Montreal crowd of 14,000 showered the ice with rubbers, programs and popcorn in their delight as Geoffrion scored three goals in a 6-1 triumph over New York Rangers and put himself in good position for an assault on hockey's most famous record.

The goals brought his season total to 46, only one fewer than Toronto's Frank Mahovlich, who has been idolized at

Wings were making sure of fourth place and a playoff berth for the 18th time in 19 seasons by beating the Bruins, 5-2, in Boston. Leading the club, as he has for years, was Gordie Howe with his 21st and 22nd goals of the season.

BRUINS BOOED
A small crowd of 6,619 booed the Bruins often throughout the game.

Detroit's other scorers were Val Fonteyne, Leo LaBine, and Norm Ullman. Jim Barlett and Jerry Toppazzini scored for Bruins.

Garden Notes

Heavy on the Flowers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

At one time not so many years ago the average "seed catalogue" would be devoted about two-thirds to vegetables and one-third to flowers. This year the proportions are reversed, with one-third vegetables to two-thirds flowers. In fact, in one popular international catalogue, the proportion is even less, with only 21 out of 128 pages devoted to vegetables.

One reason for the decline in home-grown vegetables is the modern trend to converting the backyard into an outdoor living room, complete with patio, barbecue and floodlights. There is no room for vegetables in such a setup.

Another reason is the cleanliness and convenience of purchased vegetables. They come to us trimmed, scrubbed, packaged in transparent polythene and all ready to go into the pot without any fuss or muss. As against this, only too often home-grown vegetables means a sink swimming in mud, with the odd worm or slug here and there and the garbage can overflowing with cabbage leaves and carrot tops. By the time the mess is cleaned up, the polythene-packed vegetables begin to look pretty good, even if they are a little short on vitamins as compared with freshly picked stuff.

Quite a lot can be done to save all this mess and it is quite possible to have fresh vegetables straight from the garden, with their full quota of flavor, minerals and vitamins, without dragging half the garden into the kitchen.

For instance, there is no need for any of that earth clinging to the root vegetables ever to cross the kitchen threshold. Trim the tops and roots off as you pull them and rinse them off under the garden tap or, if you don't have a tap handy, carry a bucket of water to the garden with you.

The leek is notorious as a sink-stopper, bringing in gobs of dirt and a lot of superfluous leaves. The best way to deal with this vegetable is to carry a small pair of secateurs in your hip pocket, snipping off each root and the top green leaves, then strip off the outer covering. A quick wash in the water bucket and your leeks are as clean as those from the supermarket.

To gather cauliflower — another messy vegetable — take along a sharp knife with you. Pull up the whole plant by the root and carry it to that part of the garden where you operate your compost heap and your incinerator. Lay the plant on the ground, slice off the root close under the cauliflower head and throw the root and stalk in the incinerator. Strip off the leaves and add them to the compost heap. Give the same treatment to cabbages, taking only the part that is wanted for cooking.

It is always better to clean up your vegetables, especially the leafy ones, handy to the compost heap and bonfire or incinerator, burning only the tough roots and stalks. This helps build up the compost heap, keeps the garden tidier — and the kitchen sink cleaner.

I make one exception to this rule of cleaning and stripping all vegetables away from the house. I never strip the husks off corn-on-the-cob until just before it is popped into the boiling water. Corn deteriorates very rapidly after it is picked and, for full flavor, the protecting husks should remain on the cobs until the last moment.

How to Kill Off a Heroine

About two weeks ago, the

Good Girls Never Die This One Was a Shock

heroine of a long-running soap opera, "The Edge of Night," decided that she wanted to quit the show for career reasons. In the dear old days of radio soap opera, that sort of thing wasn't hard. You simply got some other voice to take over. On television, though, it's not so easy.

The actress was Teal Ames, who played Sara Karr in the soap opera. John Larkin, the actor, who played her husband on the soap, said: "They decided they would kill the character rather than replace Teal. They didn't believe the audience would accept a replacement. But now to kill her. They didn't want her to sicken and die, feeling that would be to great a shock for the viewers."

Why? he was asked. "Well, if you're a soap opera addict you'd know leading ladies often die at death's door. But they never go through the door. If the heroine gets sick, the audience is trained to expect her to get better."

"The second idea was to send her away off somewhere with a strange malady and then get word back she'd died. That's known in the trade as a two-step death. They're not very plausible."

"So they decided to kill her violently and they brooded about how. Maybe someone from my past could kill her. But through some weird soap opera reasoning that I don't pretend to understand, the writer and producer decided that if that happened I'd be in some way culpable, that the audience would resent me."

"Then the writer thought about a violent death by accident. He shelved that idea, too. Finally, it was decided she should make the supreme sacrifice. Mother love overcoming everything — that sort of thing. They introduced a strange malady that caused her child to go wandering blindly out into the street where it was in danger of getting run over by a car. The mother, to save her, got hit instead."

"However, Sara didn't die right away. They decided she should have a death scene with me and she wound up lingering on for three days. This defeated their purpose. As I said, when people linger at death's door, the rule is that they always get well. "All except poor Sara. Her death came as a terrible shock to the viewers. She died early in that particular episode and before we got off the air, we had 250 protest phone calls."

Paranetically, in order to enlarge your understanding of the mysterious world of soap opera, you should know that the child who wandered out into the street was suffering from "paranucleosis." "Paranucleosis" was invented for the occasion for the authors who felt that the trouble with real diseases is that real people suffer from them. The chief characteristic of "paranucleosis" is that it causes small children to wander out in the street where they get struck by automobiles."

Mr. Larkin was asked if the reaction of fans didn't bother him. "Intellectually, it frightens me," he admitted. "It frightens me when I think of the total involvement some of these people have in the program."

Never Saw Stupid Actor?

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Jack Lemmon made a hit when he told the drama students at Stanford University, "I've never met a good actor who was stupid." Well, I have.

Van Heflin makes more movies abroad than any other actor who is not on the Swiss tax-evasion residence list. He's now in Rome for the premiere of his last Italian movie, "The Wastrel," and might remain to make the film version of Chekhov's "The Steppe."

Lee Remick, who once told me she could never live in California because she loved New York City so much, is not only moving into a Beverly Hills home in April — but she will have her baby, due in May, in California. Well, a lady can change her mind. And this last winter in New York would change anyone's mind about living in the east.

Fat Wymore, back from the Errol Flynn plantation in Jamaica, went immediately into a "77 Sunset Strip" segment. Comes summer and Pat will take daughter Arnelie Flynn to Europe where they will live aboard Errol's yacht, Zaca, while she makes a movie.

Cary Grant really likes to work. He reminds me a bit of Barbara Stanwyck in the old days. She couldn't enjoy life without going from one picture to another. Cary ambled on to the "Lover Come Back" set recently and, watching Doris Day and Rock Hudson, sighed, "How I envy you; you're so lucky to be working." Cary is marking time awaiting the completed script of his next picture.

Jackie Gleason has Bobby Darin to yak with on his St. Patrick's Day show. And Jackie has a surprise for Bobby, a film clip of his TV debut five years ago, singing a rock'n'roll on the old Jackie Gleason show. Quite a lot has happened to Darin in these five years.

Now that William Holden looks a bit older, he'd be very good in the biography of the late Gertrude Lawrence, owned by Paramount. Will would not have to come to Hollywood to make it — locations could be London, New York, and New England.

Walter Pidgeon, still with a slender waistline — "I keep in trim playing tennis" — will be returning to Metro for a movie when he finishes his current "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea." "We've nearly reached bottom," he said.

Spain at the Crossroads

Go Forward or Slip Back

Social Justice Still Remote Ideal

By ALAN HARVEY

(Second of a Series)

MADRID (CP) — The coming months may decide whether Spain is to move into the modern world or lurch back into economic primitivism. The issue is almost that stark. Over the last 18 months, totalitarian Spain has taken the first faltering steps toward "Europeanizing" an economy long encased in a cozy protective cocoon.

Now comes the next stage — and Spain hangs back.

Will it go boldly forward or return to the old easy ways? Observers say the answer is split on the issue.

Through four decades of dictatorship, broken by a few years of fragile democracy, Spain has stood aloof from the rest of Europe. Now it is edging toward a new respectability and Western watchers hope there will be no relapse. There are excuses for financial feebleness. In the searing Civil War, the country counted 1,000,000 dead and suffered shattering material loss.

In 1946, Spain recoiled under a United Nations diplomatic boycott.

With no Marshall aid, Spain drifted into insolvency. Then came the dramatic decision — to "go European" and link with the Organization for European Economic Co-operation.

Under agreements announced July 20, 1959, Franco's empty treasury got an aid cushion totalling $421,000,000 from OEEC and U.S. sources in return for pledges to liberate a muscle-bound economy.

Overnight, the foreign exchange position was transformed. By last September, gold and foreign holdings had leaped to nearly $500,000,000. Foreign policy luxuriated in the new climate. Now the second stage of economic liberalization is due. And there are conflicting views.

One theory is that Spain is doing nicely. But there is some shaking of heads. An old inhabitant of Madrid says Spain is pulling the wool over OEEC eyes. An economic official said the second stage is being scotched.

Vested interests and corruption are part of the system. Social justice is a remote ideal, though Franco has fashioned something of a welfare state with health services, gleaming new hospitals and workers' universities. Opportunity is nevertheless restricted.

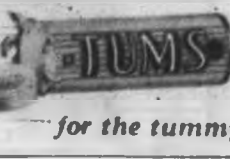

Five centuries ago this land of corridors and castanets and fandangos controlled the world's mightiest empire, but it has always lacked intrinsic wealth. Now the second stage of its annual national product per capita is about $310 compared with $1,800 in Canada.

It will be a long time before Spain achieves "la sociedad opulenta" — the affluent society. But things are probably better than they were.

Contract Talks Stalled Conciliation Expected

Contract negotiations with the city's inside staff appeared to reach an impasse yesterday, and union members said they will likely ask for conciliation.

City council rejected a compromise suggested by the union and decided to offer in writing a compromise previously orally suggested by finance committee but rejected by the union.

Other points at issue are working hours and vacations. The union asked that office hours be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. instead of 8:30 to 5; the city offered no change. The union asked for three weeks' vacation after five years' service, instead of the present 10; finance committee was willing to compromise at eight years, but the union was not.

AT ODDS
Two of the aldermen were at odds in their views of conciliation.

"A conciliation board isn't going to give much leniency to any group asking for more when so many people are out of work and want jobs," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

"COUNTERBALANCE"
"If it goes to a conciliation board, the board's going to give a 50-50 deal," said Ald. M. H. Mooney. So, he said, coun-

Inside Staff At City Hall Seeks Gains

City should be prepared to put "counterbalancing" requests before a board, for lower wages and shorter holidays.

Other council action: With no debate, council referred to works committee a petition signed by 238 business men and presented by former leaderman Elmer McEwen, opposing doubling of the parking meter rate in the downtown business district on the grounds that it would drive away business.

MINORITIES
With special restrictions on the nature of the building that can be erected, council approved in principle the rezoning of a 3.3-acre area near the Rockland water tower for a high-rise apartment block.

From Harold Gregson, a resident of the district most affected by fly-ash from the mills, council received a box of cinders and a call for action.

to halt the nuisance. His letter—and presumably the box of fly-ash—was referred to public works committee.

PLANS DROPPED

Over some objection by Ald. Edgelow, council voted to abandon expropriation proceedings for property adjacent to the Memorial Arena, because it considered the price set by an arbitration board too high.

It approved purchase for $25,000 of four properties including a service station and an oil warehouse to make way for reconstruction of the Wharf Johnson Store intersection and bridge approach.

UNANIMOUS

Council unanimously accepted the recommendation of welfare committee that it ask the provincial welfare department to reconsider its decision to discontinue medical coverage for "unemployed employables" who have begun to receive social assistance since Jan. 16.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, predicting that "the time is going to come when all will get medical aid," asked what better use public money could be put to than guarding the health of those jobless and in need.

664 BOYS

Ald. Edgelow, as a board member of the Victoria Boys' Club, informed council that the recently formed club now has 664 boys registered as members and "is doing a wonderful job."

Council supported a Saanich request that a new forest biology laboratory be built on the Victoria University campus instead of the Burnside site long held for this purpose.

SPEAKERS' CORNER

Larry Tickner and Christopher Luff, appearing for the Socialist Party of Canada, asked council not to relocate Speakers' Corner south of the main parking bay on Dallas below Beacon Hill. But council approved the new location without discussion.

PGE Train Off Rails

LILLOOET (CP)—A five-car diesel unit and 10 cars of a Pacific Great Eastern train were derailed Thursday afternoon near here.

No one on the southbound 75-car train was injured. The line is expected to be cleared by noon Friday.

Passengers on southbound trains blocked by the derailment will be taken to Vancouver.

Chant Proposals

Don't Be Hasty Principal Urges

Haste should have no place in implementing the Chant report on education in B.C., Victoria Optimist Club was told yesterday.

Bernard C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School, said he spoke not in "blanket condemnation" of the bulky report, but as a knowledgeable interpreter for some of the thousands who should, but certainly wouldn't, read the report for themselves.

PROBLEM HERE

"If, as suggested, Grade 7 is reverted next September to inclusion in elementary schools, there will be an immediate problem here in Victoria, for instance," he said.

"There is no accommodation in elementary schools now for this extra grade; these pupils would have to go into a junior Thermopylae Club members have voted to accept the invitation extended by the directors of the B.C. Maritime Museum to join the museum's membership in a body.

The two organizations will each retain its own identity, but Thermopylae Club members will have full voting privileges in museum matters. The club was formed for ship lovers, particularly those who served under sail.

Independents Face 'Annihilation' In Forest Setup

B.C.'s independent lumber and plywood manufacturers face "complete annihilation within the next decade" unless the government takes steps to correct the inequities which have developed, the legislative committee on forestry was told yesterday.

The 23-member Independent Timber Converters Co-operative Association said present forest policy failed to provide raw material supply for its segment of the industry on equal conditions.

MORE FOR FEW

There were increasing amounts of raw timber available to the six huge companies which are the holders of tree farm licences in B.C., while the cut allowed small independent companies was decreasing, said the brief.

At the same time the small companies had to bid exorbitant prices against the large companies in order to get that timber.

SAVE RESOURCES

"We have no quarrel with the restriction of the annual cut for the sake of preserving the timber resources for future generations," said the brief. "We do not think, however, that a change preserving the wealth of the future generations should be undertaken too harshly and indiscriminately at the cost of destroying existing efficient industry. We believe that if, in the process of issuing tree farm licences, conditions have been created which are injurious to and discriminatory against the remaining part of the industry, these side effects have to be rectified, for the sake of the economy of this province and also for the sake of the basic principles of equity."

Bold Action Wanted For Economy

Camille Mather (CUT-Defta) had a ready answer for Premier Bennett yesterday after the premier said he had met leaders of all three marine unions during the emergency of the 1955 Black Ball ferry strike.

"This week we also had a very serious situation," she said, referring to the unemployed march on the legislature.

"The economy of B.C. is in a very serious state. I would like to see the same bold action taken at a cabinet meeting, where thought and carefully planned action may be taken to meet the serious unemployment situation."

CCFer Tells House:

Use of Schools Inefficient

School buildings are not being put to enough use, David Barrett (CCF-Dewdney) told Education Minister Leslie Peterson in the legislature yesterday.

He said a little imagination could see use of the buildings increased by one-third at least, giving taxpayers more for their money.

Most of the buildings are idle over the weekends, in evenings and in the summers, he said. "Let's give consideration to opening the school gymnasiums to the youngsters, un-

40-Hour Week Urged

A call for legislation to bring in a 40-hour work week and action to eliminate or cut moonlighting to a minimum was sounded in the legislature yesterday by Rae Eddie (CCF-New Westminster).

Mr. Eddie accused the board of industrial relations of "discriminate granting of overtime permits, much of which could be eliminated."

PUT MORE TO WORK

"Every time we reduce the number of overtime hours, we will put someone to work," he observed.

He was backed up by John Squire (CCF-Alberni) who said there hasn't been change in the work week for 20 years.

Mr. Squire won an admission from Labor Minister Peterson that the board of industrial relations had granted the pipeline industry free use of overtime, without having to get permits.

Mr. Peterson said the overtime was being allowed because the pipeline industry works in isolated areas and under severe climatic conditions. He said overtime regulations would be impossible to enforce.

TRIPLE SHIFTS

"The argument about isolated areas is not valid. No body works in more isolated areas than loggers, and the loggers work double shifts, even triple shifts," Mr. Squire countered.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When my husband and I dine out, which is quite often, I like to tell him what I want so he can tell the waiter. I've always believed this is the proper way to do.

The last few times I've done this my husband has said to me "Why don't you tell the waiter yourself—he's standing right here." (All this in front of the waiter.) I just wanted to die.

What shall I say when he pulls this again? Please think of an answer that will blister his hide. Thank you—A LADY.

Dear Lady: You are indeed correct. Try this needle for size: "Because a gentleman like you expects his wife to behave like a lady. And a lady always gives the order to the gentleman and allows him to place it."

Dear Ann Landers: There are 15 employees in this small business. The owner is almost a stranger to us. He spends no time in the office and we see him once a year at the annual Christmas dinner. He drops in to honor us with his presence (in time for dessert) then he picks up his gift and leaves.

The manager of the business is "one of us," devoted to his work and a first-rate guy. Next year we want to buy a gift for him and skip the owner. We've never bought the manager anything although he's the one we'd like to honor.

Some have said this would cause hard feelings and think we should split the money and buy them each a modest gift. What do you say?—15.

Dear 15: Since there seems to be so little enthusiasm for the owner next year, for

'Sweetheart' Ball At Empress Hotel

Sigma Chi, Delta Phi Chapter of the University of Puget Sound has announced plans to hold their "Sweetheart Ball" in Victoria at the Empress Hotel this Saturday.

"The charm of the city creates an ideal atmosphere for our dance," said the committee in writing. "And it is possible we may make it an annual affair in your city."

This is the chapter's 11th annual dance. The dance honors five University of Puget Sound cords who have been in competition for the honor of being crowned the 1961 sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

The girls are Miss Anne Clancy, Wain Walla; Miss Janice Hedcock, Langley; Miss Shirley Osborn, Seattle; Miss Karen Sell and Miss Sheri Zabel from Olympia.

More than 130 guests will dine on French cuisine and dance to the music of Len Acres and his orchestra. Last year's "sweetheart" Miss Terry Turnbull, Tacoma, will crown the new sweetheart.

Patrons for the evening will include Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. MacLeod of Victoria and Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Brewster Coulter and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fabulich of Tacoma.

Honor guests will include Dr. and Mrs. R. Franklin Thompson, Dr. Margaret Walker and Dean and Mrs. R. D. Smith all of the University of Puget Sound.

You'll enjoy this tangy vegetable relish with any kind of meat... and it's good on crackers, too.

What's Cooking!

Vegetable Relish Something Different

Here is a recipe for a vegetable relish that you will find handy to have on hand. It tastes good with any kind of meat and, in addition, makes a different, tart and spicy hors d'oeuvre for serving with crackers before dinner.

Mushrooms, onions and tomatoes are always a good combination and the particular spices and herbs used with them in this recipe have been chosen with care, to enhance the flavors of the vegetables.

The cooking time of the relish is short—only about 30 minutes—and the recipe makes over 2 cups.

MUSHROOM AND ONION-RING RELISH
One pound onions, sliced 1/4" thick; 1/2 cup salad oil; 2 tablespoons vinegar; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1 6-ounce can tomato paste; 1 6-ounce can water; 1 clove garlic (or 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder); 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon pepper; 1/2 teaspoon thyme; 2 whole cloves; 1 bay leaf; 4 sprigs parsley.

Mix all ingredients together in a saucepan and bring to boil; boil gently 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add 1 pint (1/2 pound) mushrooms, leaving small mushrooms whole and cutting larger ones in halves or quarters.

Bell Ringers From Portland

An interesting evening will be presented Monday, March 13 in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, when the Young Peoples' Society sponsor a program by a troupe of 16 bell-ringers from the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. Daryl Elford, president, presided at the recent meeting of the groups in the social suite. Mrs. M. P. Mathews was in charge of the devotional period.

A newly-formed Royal Oak Group was welcomed. Leader is Mrs. Jack Ferguson, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Falconer. Miss Margaret Sanson was appointed voting representative to the Local Council of Women monthly meeting.

Mrs. A. E. Delorme presented on behalf of St. Andrew's Cub and Scout dinner to be held March 15, was presented with a cheque for $25 to assist the 4th Victoria Scout Troup in their activities.

The mid-summer garden party will be held at Glenlyon School, 1701 Beach Drive on Saturday, July 1, under the joint co-sponsorship of Mrs. Daryl Elford and Mrs. H. Hamilton.

Daisy Ruddock, 90 Visits Wax Queen

By EILEEN LEABOYD
When Mrs. Daisy Ruddock of 2043 Kings Road was a little girl and saw Queen Victoria wheeled in her bathchair out of a side entrance of Windsor Castle by two tall

East Indian servants, she could not foresee that 80 years later, living in Canada, she would curtsy to a wax image of the same Queen. Now a lady of 90 years, Mrs. Ruddock yesterday made a special trip to the Empress Hotel to see the wax figure of the famous Widow of Windsor.

"The figure was so lifelike, I curtsied to it," said Mrs. Ruddock with a spirited look which defied anyone to think this was at all foolish.

Time has dealt gently with Mrs. Ruddock and her memory has not been dimmed by her great years. She recalled her first glimpse of Queen Victoria.

"I saw her at a review at Aldershot. My uncle was an officer in the Royal Army Service Corps so my aunt and I sat in a special enclosure where we saw the Queen go by in her carriage. Behind her sat her friend and servant, John Brown in his kilt. I remember telling my aunt how disappointed I was to find the Queen all in black and not wearing her crown, and for this remark I got a good spanking."

"The time I happened to see the Queen at Windsor, I think she was probably on her way to visit the Duchesse of Cambridge to have a dish of tea with her."

Another vivid picture in Mrs. Ruddock's mind, was again shared with her aunt.

"We were walking down Downing Street when a crowd began to gather at No. 10. A tall man in a long black cape and wearing a black felt hat came out and walked past us. 'Now my dear,' said my aunt, 'You can remember all your life that you have seen Mr. Disraeli.'"

In the course of her eventful life, Daisy Ruddock, married a man who was a surveyor and civil engineer and moved about to many countries as he did.

They had five daughters, Bernice, born in Natal, South Africa; Enid born in Ontario; Jessie born in St. Boniface, Manitoba; Mimi born in Oregon; and Marguerite born in Victoria.

They made Victoria their permanent home in 1916 and among her other activities, for so long time Mrs. Ruddock taught dancing, ballroom and fancy dancing. Years before in London, she had taken ballet lessons from Kattellinni of the Empire Theatre and herself appeared in pantomime.

She was often in shows here at the old Pantages.

She lives now with her daughter Mrs. Enid Cooper, another daughter, Jessie, Mrs. K. A. Thompson, also lives in Victoria. Bernice now lives in San Francisco, Mimi in Alaska and Marguerite in Winnipeg. Mrs. Ruddock's only complaint about life is that her daughters do not like her to go out alone to evening meetings.

This spirited and gracious lady belongs to the Royal Society of St. George, the Navy League chapter IODE, the Kipling Society, the Dickens Society, and the Theosophical Society.

But she goes to the afternoon meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. William Raymond Chard, married recently in a ceremony in Metropolitan United Church, have now made their home in Quebec City. The bride is the former Miss Mildred House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick House, St. John's, Nfld., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chard of Victoria. The couple spent their honeymoon on the mainland and in Seattle before travelling east.—(Ryan Bros. photo.)

Children Unfed

TORONTO (UPI)—Only about 20 children joined the breadlines at the Scott Mission in Toronto yesterday, following an announcement that welfare officials were there.

The officials, however, were barred from interrogating the children or their mothers but were allowed only to look on.

NO QUESTIONS
Director of welfare services William Turnbull and two officials who went to investigate the breadline at noon were told to "ask no questions."

They were stopped from talking to the children by Rev. Alec Zeidman, the Presbyterian minister who runs the mission.

"These people (the children) come to us in confidence," said Dr. Zeidman. "We don't want a welfare quiz. We don't want welfare officials putting them through the mill."

Mr. Turnbull said he didn't

understand why the mission would try to protect them from us." He denied that the investigation of the underfed children would lead to criminal charges.

Mr. Turnbull said his department wanted to talk to the mothers to make sure "that they were availing themselves of the full welfare opportunities."

WELFARE'S FAULT
Dr. Zeidman said that if this were the case it was the fault of the welfare people that the women didn't know their full opportunities.

"They should have explained all the opportunities when they all the opportunities when the women applied for welfare," said Dr. Zeidman. "The reason why these people come here is because they can't manage on the welfare."

The child breadlines have roused the city. City fathers called for an investigation and radio stations urged listeners to help.

Offers of help are pouring in to the mission—clothing, free help.

BRAVE SNOW
Yesterday's children braved cold winds and snow for their meal, which was served in the mission's chapel, next door to where jobless men are fed in shifts.

Dr. Zeidman said he will keep the mission open to children "as long as there are hungry children."

Another Sales Tax!

TORONTO (UPI)—Ontario yesterday became the eighth province in Canada to slap a sales tax on luxury items.

In announcing his record $1,015,300,000 budget in the legislature, treasurer James Allan disclosed that, as rumored, the tax will be a direct across-the-counter levy of 3 per cent, and will go into effect Sept. 1.

Generally, the tax will be applied on nearly everything that is sold over a merchant's counter. But all food products (except candy, confections and soft drinks) costing more than 16 cents, children's clothing, prescription drugs, medicines and certain medical appliances, and meals sold in restaurants under $1.50 will be tax free.

IRENE REBRIN

Minister 'Violated Natural Justice'

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Supreme Court of Canada yesterday was asked to quash a federal government deportation order against University of British Columbia language expert Irene Rebrin.

Vancouver lawyer Angelo Branca, counsel for Miss Rebrin, asked the nine justices to upset decisions by British Columbia courts and Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough upholding the deportation order on the grounds that Mrs. Fairclough violated "the principles of natural justice" in handling the case.

Branca argued that the immigration minister, in considering Miss Rebrin's appeal against the order, had used classified government information branding the 33-year-old blonde a "security risk" rather than confining herself to material presented at the original deportation hearing.

If the minister had decided to use the classified information, Miss Rebrin should have been informed of it.

"Under the Canadian bill of rights, as we now have it, procedure of that nature cannot be countenanced," Branca said.

Miss Rebrin, born in China of White Russian parents, came to Canada from Brazil in 1934 on a visitor's permit. A year later, she applied for permanent entry, but was turned down on the grounds that she failed to qualify.

Robert Leonard P. Blake, Work Point, was fined $200 in Saanich police court yesterday, and placed under $500 bond for two years, after pleading guilty earlier to a charge of common assault.

Accused had admitted grabbing a young woman on secluded Sioba Lane, off Quadra, after following in his car the bus on which she was a passenger. He fled when she screamed.

Magistrate William Ostler warned accused of the dangers inherent in his "Jekyll and Hyde" personality, caused by the poisonous effect of alcohol. Conditions of the bond were that accused place himself on the Interdict list, and continue with army psychiatric treatment.

Two men were fined $50 each, or in default 30 days, when they pleaded guilty to drinking in a public place. They were Frank Clear, 1306 Hastings, and Robert E. Walker, Jr., 3406 Browning.

Aldermen Want Staff Solicitor

Victoria's two newest aldermen yesterday continued their fight against contracting for city solicitor's services instead of having a city solicitor on staff, but they lost.

Aldermen Michael Griffin and A. W. Toone gained the support of Ald. M. H. Mooney in opposition, but council approved a contract with T. P. O'Grady to supply the services of city solicitor, paying his own staff and providing his own supplies, for $22,500 for the year.

NO OTHER INTERESTS

Ald. Griffin in particular maintained that the city should have a full-time solicitor with no other legal interests.

He said he couldn't agree with Mayor Percy Scurrell's estimate that hiring a collector, an assistant and a stenographer would cost $30,000, and he suggested that "the trouble here" was a disparity of professional salaries at City Hall and "this is a neat way of getting around it."

"NOT OVERPAID"

"I can't agree with you there," said Mayor Scurrell. "When he pays his assistant, his secretary and his office expenses out of $22,500, he's not overpaid and not out of line, I assure you."

Mr. O'Grady, he said, was an outstanding city solicitor with a "tremendous accumulation of knowledge of municipal law" and had amply demonstrated his full devotion to the city's interests.

Juvenile Drivers In Regular Court?

City council yesterday called for a second look at a proposal that legislation be sought to allow juvenile traffic offenders to be tried in a traffic court instead of juvenile court.

The proposal, from inter-municipal committee, was supported by Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, who said a large number of offences coming before juvenile court were traffic offences and not very serious.

KEEP SEPARATE

But Ald. M. H. Mooney objected that the juvenile and family court was established to keep juveniles away from the police station, and Ald. Geoffrey Edgell suggested that the juvenile court itself could handle traffic cases separately.

Juvenile court steering committee was asked for another report.

SECOND OFFICER

Council agreed, however, with an inter-municipal committee proposal that a second probation officer and a second stenographer be engaged at once for the juvenile and family court, and that the attorney-general's department be asked to supply and pay the salary of a third probation officer. (The department has already said it will reject the request.)

Change for Grade 7 Mainly Economic

The main reason for plans to return Grade 7 students to elementary school is to save money, not improve education, Oak Bay Kiwanis Club was told last night.

"I don't think we can expect education to be cheap and I was pleased to see one gentleman in the legislature say education is one of the cheapest assets we have," said Donald Smith, principal of Esquimalt High School.

ECONOMIC

"Behind this move of the Grade 7s to elementary schools the main reason is economic," Mr. Smith said the change would mean more elementary school classrooms would have to be built, rather than junior high school rooms, and construction costs are lower for elementary classrooms.

"The pushing back of Grade 7 into elementary schools, I am afraid, is going to push out kindergarten classes at the other end. And I think kindergarten classes are important," he added.

Bedroom Prison For Girl

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)

A 13-year-old girl told police today she was locked in her room for seven years—and allowed out only to attend school.

Police stumbled on the story after Elmer J. Kensinger reported his daughter had run away from home.

The girl, Elaine, was found at the home of a girl friend.

ONLY TWICE

Police said Elaine told them her meals were brought to her in the locked bedroom and that in the entire seven years of confinement she had been allowed to eat at the family table only twice.

The eighth-grader said her four-year-old sister, Mary, also had been kept locked in the scantily furnished room some of the time.

Elaine's parents were jailed on charges of child neglect and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

PUNISHED

Police quoted the father, a coin shop dealer, as saying the girl was being "punished for naming her mother."

Juvenile officers said the girl's room was filthy. They said the window was nailed shut and the door to the bathroom also was nailed fast.

The girl said she did not have access to the bathroom and had to use a coffee can instead.

Unions Agreed To Work for B.C.

Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday that the leaders of three marine unions involved in the 1958 Black Ball ferry tie-up had agreed to work under government operation, before he invoked the Civil Defence Act.

He said after they agreed, he met with cabinet and the only method they could find to take over the operation of the ships was under the Civil Defence Act.

Premier Bennett said he went back and told the three union leaders. "They said they were sorry it was the Civil Defence Act, but they had agreed," the premier said.

"They said they might get Hall Columbia when they went back to the union halls in Vancouver."

It was the first time the premier had defended his position on the matter in the House, despite attacks from the CCF opposition during 1959 and 1960 sessions.

Peterson Portfolios 'Confusing'

John Miquia (CCF—Alberni) finds Leslie Peterson's two portfolios—minister of education and minister of labor—both confusing and embarrassing.

"It is hard to go home and tell your children the minister of education is a fine fellow... and then have to tell them what you think about the minister of labor," he said.

He said after they agreed, he met with cabinet and the only method they could find to take over the operation of the ships was under the Civil Defence Act.

It was the first time the premier had defended his position on the matter in the House, despite attacks from the CCF opposition during 1959 and 1960 sessions.

Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday that the leaders of three marine unions involved in the 1958 Black Ball ferry tie-up had agreed to work under government operation, before he invoked the Civil Defence Act.

He said after they agreed, he met with cabinet and the only method they could find to take over the operation of the ships was under the Civil Defence Act.

Premier Bennett said he went back and told the three union leaders. "They said they were sorry it was the Civil Defence Act, but they had agreed," the premier said.

"They said they might get Hall Columbia when they went back to the union halls in Vancouver."

Train In Bad Odor

KINGS LYNN, England

(Reuters) — Crowds on the station platform held their noses or fled when the 3.45 a.m. train from Hunstanton pulled into Kings Lynn Wednesday.

Inside were 85 passengers—also holding their noses. The train had hit a 500-gallon container of liquid pig manure as a tractor tried to pull it across a rail-road crossing. All 500 gallons showered over the train.

U.S. Mission Seeks Freedom for 300

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo

(UPI)—The United States sent an emissary to the leftist regime at Stanleyville yesterday to try to win freedom for 300 whites, including nine Americans, held virtual prisoner by pro-Lumumba forces.

U.S. embassy second secretary Frank Carlucci set out on a mercy mission as the UN troop command in Leopoldville gave in to more Congolese demands in hopes tension would be reduced.

The UN command agreed to remove armed UN patrols from the streets where they had been keeping the peace since last summer.

By according to the demand of the government of President Joseph Kasavubu, UN officials hoped they could return their forces to the vital Atlantic coast supply base at Matadi, which was evacuated by a small detachment of Sudanese and Canadian soldiers last weekend.

HOW TO PUT A STOP TO EARLY-AGING SIGNS

Even the most skillful make-up can't hide flaky cheeks, crow's feet, little lines. But once you realize that these early-aging signs are caused by lack of natural moisture within the skin, you can take effective action! Use POND'S DAY SKIN CREAM. This famous cream contains Allantoin—a remarkable substance that starts to repair dry skin in just 10 minutes! Allantoin gently floats off the lifeless surface cells... opens the way for Pond's rich moisturizing lanolin to penetrate deep-down into parched tissues. Almost overnight, your complexion becomes softer, smoother, younger-looking! Get POND'S DAY SKIN CREAM—use it regularly. In jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Peterson Advised To Know Labor

Tony Gargrave (CCF—MacKenzie)

last night appealed to Labor Minister Peterson to "make a real effort to contact and get to know leaders of the trade union movement."

"Make sure you are not getting a feedback from people of your own persuasion, only," he warned. "If you do you are heading for a fall."

He said the only people who can solve labor problems are labor and management.

"There is danger in legislation which gets in between two parties," he advised.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Knowing when to balance — that is, to open the bidding after the opponents have stopped at a part — is one of the delicate arts of contract bridge. When the opponents stop at one, it is a trump, indicating that they have not much more than 20 high-card points, the player with only 10 in his own hand can figure on finding a few points with his partner. The biggest danger in this situation is that the partner will go too skittish with the points you are already counting him for.

It would not matter whether West rebid two hearts instead of one trump. When the bid is passed around to South, he can be sure that he will find some strength in partner's hand. So, though he did not overcall in the first place — when his weak hand might have been sandwiched between two powerful opponents — he is now pretty safe for him to come in with two spades.

The fact is that West will make one no trump, for a part score which experts estimate to be worth some two to three hundred points in actual and tactical value. Thus, being set one or two at two spades will not show any real loss and may, in fact, represent a profit.

Dummy ducked the heart lead. Declarer hoped that West might hold the trick and shift to trumps in order to stop the threatened heart ruff. But East overtook the queen with the king in order to lead the king and another diamond. West took the ace and continued diamonds. East ruffed with the ten-spade. If South overruled, he would be able to trump his third heart in dummy but would eventually lose three trump tricks to West's hand. Discarding a heart instead of overtrumping the diamond would simply save losers. Either way, South would be down one.

Note that holding up the heart ace would save declarer a trick if the defenders shifted to trumps to prevent a heart ruff. South's queen would force the ace on the first trump lead; he would win the next trump and lead a third round. The third round's pawns shifted back to hearts, he would win with dummy's ace and, thanks to the good break in clubs, would be able to discard his third heart and win eight tricks.

Hydrofoil Flies In

First "passenger" run of the hydrofoil Flying Fish between Bellingham, Wash., and Victoria yesterday heralded an early start in scheduled inter-city service.

Company officials said the water-skimming craft will begin this service March 16, leaving Bellingham at 9 a.m.

Thursdays through Mondays and arriving in Victoria at 11 a.m., and leaving Victoria at 2 p.m. to arrive in Bellingham at 4 p.m.

Yesterday the Flying Fish, which can carry 65 passengers at speeds up to 50 miles an hour, brought 19 special guests to Victoria's Harbor Marine terminal in two hours.

Observers on this first of several familiarization trips included officers of the United States navy, army, air force and marines. A particularly interested passenger was Capt. Donald Oldow, master of the Black Ball ferry Coho.

The return trip to Bellingham yesterday afternoon was a little more hectic because of high winds, a passenger said. At times waves went right over the craft.

Bellingham was reached in three hours.

By Dick Williams

Dapper Don Porter was touring the barn-theatre circuit during a summer hiatus from the Ann Sothern Show. The night was hot, the stage was rickety and the play — Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" — had suffered one catastrophe after another. Porter was carrying on heavily with a hastily-improvised ring of lanterns providing a poor substitute for the broken footlights. Suddenly laughs were coming in the wrong places. A skunk had invaded the theatre.

When the play resumed, after he'd been carefully chased out, there was no way to prevent Porter's next line — one Noel Coward didn't intend to be nearly so hilarious. Don lined it out stoutly: "I smell ectoplasm!"

The Canadian Players will be in Victoria for three performances today and tomorrow.

At 2:30 p.m. today Shakespeare's "The Tempest" will be presented. This evening and tomorrow evening at 8:15 Bertold Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" will be staged. All performances are at Oak Bay Junior High School.

OAK BAY BEACH HOTEL Following our special Sunday evening dinner on March 12, Mrs. MacDonald will show her colored slides of Yugoslavia.

Body Approved For Centenary

City council yesterday approved appointment of a committee already in action — the centennial committee.

Council also approved setting aside $2,000 to hire a secretary "to do all the running around and co-ordinating necessary," Mayor Percy Scurrell said.

Mayor Scurrell recalled that in his inaugural address this year, he suggested that the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association should be the working committee for the centenary next year.

"I think that was a mistake," the mayor said. "Since then Ald. Edgewood has got together a very representative committee, and I'd like authority from council to have Aldermen Edgewood and Curtis as a committee with power to add with the idea that they would

Russia Far Ahead Man in Orbit Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—George M. Low, head of the U.S. man-in-space program, said yesterday Russia's recovery of a dog from orbit shows the Soviets are many months ahead of the U.S. and about ready to put a man in orbit. (See story on Page 3.)

The U.S. plans to orbit a chimpanzee sometime this year, and perhaps a man soon after.

Important Step: Break Deadlock

LONDON (CP)—The importance of breaking the world deadlock on disarmament was stressed Thursday by Commonwealth prime ministers.

With all leaders except President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana contributing to the discussion, the second day of the Commonwealth conference was devoted in intricate detail to a topic all agreed to be the world's No. 1 problem. Nkrumah will probably speak today.

CANADA ON RECORD

Prime Minister Diefenbaker emphasized the need to resume disarmament negotiations as soon as possible. He placed clearly on record Canada's opposition to continuing nuclear tests.

There was general agreement among the leaders that somehow there must be agreement on a nuclear test ban at the conference, resuming in Geneva March 21.

TWO REASONS

The ban would give a decisive impetus to general disarmament, and it was urgent because the time was approaching when new nations would join the nuclear ranks.

On disarmament generally, there were differing opinions as to the next stage. Some countries appeared willing to let Washington and Moscow do the talking; others including Canada, felt that there should be some UN influence on the discussions.

Drink, Drugs, Disease, Sin 'Desperate' B.C. Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—A University of British Columbia professor said in an interview Thursday a committee is needed to draw attention to the province's desperate social welfare problem.

Prof. James Richardson of the College of Education is chairman of a Unitarian church group which distributed 1,000 copies of a sermon by Rev. Phillip Hewitt dealing with the problem.

"We hope there will be enough reaction," said the professor, "to bring together interested parties to form a new committee."

Rev. Hewitt's sermon described British Columbia as having the highest rates of alcoholism, drug addiction, venereal disease and illegitimate births of any province in Canada.

Vancouver Crime Total Increased 27 Per Cent

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police reported Thursday serious crime in the city has increased by 27 per cent.

The department's February report showed 3,659 offences so far this year, compared with 2,889 in the same period last year.

However, February showed an 11 per cent decrease from January.

Major contributions to the increase were burglaries.

Starr, Pearson Cross Swords On Job Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's anti-unemployment program is a massive attack across the whole field of the Canadian economy, Labor Minister Starr said in the Commons Thursday.

But Opposition Leader Pearson described Mr. Starr's speech, at the opening of debate on the labor department's 1961-62 spending estimates as "ludicrously inadequate."

The two squared off at the start of the session's main labor policy debate, brought on earlier than usual by the House leaders.

Commons leaders had these facts to chew on:

1. At mid-January, unemployment in Canada totalled 693,000, a post-war record for the month and up from 547,000 in January, 1960.

2. At Jan. 31, the Unemployment Insurance fund had a balance of $283,742,150, down from $445,883,387 a year earlier and $916,429,487 at Jan. 31, 1957, when the Liberals were still in office.

3. At March 3, this year's municipal winter works program had provided jobs for more than 100,000 workers, about double the employment provided by the program by that date last year.

4. The labor department's budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year opening April 1 is $126,497,933, of which $102,617,990 is to be voted for the insurance fund.

"Unemployment can only be cured and its consequences arrested by a massive attack across the whole field of the general economy, and this we are doing," Mr. Starr said.

FACE REALITY
Mr. Pearson replied that the government has failed to face reality in dealing with unemployment.

He said Mr. Starr's general review of the situation was a "ludicrously inadequate way of dealing with unemployment," and the inadequacy was discouraging and disheartening.

An authoritative source told reporters Thursday night the reminder was in a message Hammarstrom dispatched to Kasavubu in Tananarive, Madagascar Republic, where the president and his premier, Joseph Ileo, are seeking a settlement on neutral ground with rival Congolese political leaders.

Meanwhile prospects for a curtailed session of the UN General Assembly, as proposed by United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, appeared to be fading because of Soviet insistence on a full-scale disarmament debate.

Motorists convicted for driving while impaired by drugs face heavy fines, he said, pointing out that even tranquilizers and antihistamines can reduce alertness of drivers and turn him into a speed menace.

Brazil Leader's Snub 'Shocks' U.S. Envoys

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Diplomats said Thursday President Janio Quadros turned his back on U.S. presidential emissary Adolf A. Berle Jr., and walked out of the room, refusing his proffered hand, at the end of their March 2 conference in Brasilia.

LESS THAN CORDIAL

They said the meeting was "less than cordial," in contradiction of Berle's post-conference statement that he had "a cordial discussion with the president."

(In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk insisted that the Quadros-Berle discussion was "extremely cordial and helpful.")

According to diplomats here, the group rose to its feet at the end of a meeting and Berle, preparing to say goodbye, offered Quadros his hand. The president, they said, turned his back to Berle and walked rapidly from the room.

Strong Debate Stirs Legislature

By PETER BRUTON

Liberal leader Ray Perrault was left reeling from a double bludgeoning by both Social Credit and CCF ranks last night and then looked on as the CCF fought the government over labor-management relations.

The Liberal leader was given one of the most bitter callings-downs seen in the legislature for some time over his charges that B.C. had the worst labor-management relations in all of Canada and that investment counsellors were urging their clients not to invest in B.C.

NEVER UTTERED

Such an opinion should never have been uttered by a member of the legislature, said Attorney-General Robert Bonner who termed the charges completely false.

Mr. Perrault had done a great disservice to labor and management, charged CCF leader Strachan who then turned on both Liberal and Socred ranks and said: "A plague on both your houses."

ABOUT TIME

Mr. Perrault began his speech by saying it was about time British Columbians faced facts about the very real crisis of lack of investment capital in the province today. It was simply not coming in as it had a few years ago.

"The government has failed to provide a proper climate of labor-management relations," he said. "No province in Canada has such a bad record."

"That's not true, that's not true," shouted CCF leader Strachan.

INVESTMENT MECCA

The Liberal leader said that from 1945 to 1956 B.C. was the investment mecca of Canada. This province was a choice investment area and there was a tremendous surge forward industrially.

"The situation today is less than enthusiastic in the centres of investment capital," said Mr. Perrault.

Investment leaders were warning capital to stay away from B.C. and it was a basic necessity to create a proper labor plan.

DELIBERATE ACTS

"There have been almost deliberate acts on the part of the government to infuriate labor and to alienate the working man," he said.

If the government really wanted to create jobs it should take those steps that were going to bring about labor-management harmony. This should include a full-time labor relations board, a productivity council, and the inclusion of labor representatives on overseas trades missions.

CLASS STRUGGLE

"The situation in this province today is the worst example of the phony class struggle of anywhere in Canada," he stated.

After the Liberal leader had resumed his seat, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he had been forced to take the unusual course of speaking during another minister's estimates.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL
... not true

NOT TO INVEST

It was an "astounding attitude of superficiality" when the Liberal leader tried to say that investment counsellors were recommending investors not to invest in B.C.

"This is not a fact," said Mr. Bonner, who doubles as minister of industrial development, trade and industry.

"This is not a responsible point of view," he added.

MEMBER OF HOUSE

"This is not an opinion which should have been uttered by a member of this House."

Neither was it true, said Mr. Bonner, that class warfare between labor and management existed in this province. There had, on different occasions, been sharp differences of opinion between management and labor.

"But this does not amount to any extraordinary situation in comparison to any other community in North America," he said. "This is a vast disservice to labor and a vast disservice to industry and an astonishing affront to the flow of capital which has been

George Isn't Going For Panic Button

Coach George Agar is the first to admit that the chances of Victoria Cougars making the Western Hockey League playoffs are getting slimmer by the moment, but he isn't ready to hit the panic button yet.

"We've got to improve and start winning—preferably tonight against Spokane," he said. "But if the pressure is on us, it's even worse on Edmonton. After all, we are two points ahead with a game in hand, and they can't afford to make mistakes any more than we can."

Agar is hoping the Cougars will stop making mistakes tonight at Memorial Arena, when they play the Comets at 8:30. If they don't, they're liable to find sixth place a little crowded by 10:30.

While the Cougars are toiling against Spokane, Flyers will be playing Winnipeg's last-place Warriors in Edmonton. A combination of a Cougars loss and an Edmonton victory would mean a sixth-place tie.

If both get a winning streak going, the whole thing could be decided March 28 when the Flyers play a call to Memorial Arena. Cougars would feel much more comfortable if they were ready for that visit with a bigger lead.

Speaking Briefly

British Vote to Open Wimbledon Tennis

Another major step toward the seemingly inevitable open tennis tournaments was taken yesterday when the British Lawn Tennis Association passed a resolution that the 1962 Wimbledon championships be open to professional players.

The council of the association will forward the following recommendation, passed by a 65-5 vote, to the International Lawn Tennis Federation meeting in Stockholm July 12.

"That as an experiment the championships at Wimbledon and other official championships if desired, be allowed to accept entries from professionals as well as amateurs in 1962."

In Montreal, Lorne Main, tournament chairman of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, called the move "a good thing" but added his association would probably wait until the results of the first open tournament at Wimbledon before deciding whether or not to follow suit.

MONTREAL, FANS will say a reluctant goodbye to quarterback Ham Etcheverry with a $10-a-plate dinner, and they're scooping up tickets as though they were for the Grey Cup game. Etcheverry will play his football this season for St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Jerry Lucas, 48, star of Ohio State University, has been named college basketball's player of the year.

Arnold Palmer, last year's biggest money winner in professional golf, is back on top again this year with $18,600 from eight tournaments.

Chuck Connors, last of baseball's famed clan has sold his 46 per cent stock in Chicago White Sox to Chicago attorney Lloyd G. Harold.

Ottawa's Grey Cup champion Rough Riders will show a net profit of between $25,000 and $30,000, according to figures released yesterday.

B.C. LIONS have signed import tackle Bill Farber, a 6'2", 225-pounder from University of Colorado. He is the sixth import lineman signed by the club to date.

Edmonton Eskimos have signed end, Bob Morrison of Appalachian State

Bernie Booms Back Into Running Only One Goal Behind Mahovlich

One of the most hair-raising National Hockey League finishes in years was set up last night as Montreal Canadiens barged back into a first-place tie with Toronto and Bernie Geoffrion zeroed in on Frank Mahovlich and the league scoring record.

A Montreal crowd of 14,000 showered the ice with rubbers, programs and popcorn in their delight as Geoffrion scored three goals in a 6-1 triumph over New York Rangers and put himself in good position for an assault on hockey's most famous record.

The goals brought his season total to 46, only one fewer than Toronto's Frank Mahovlich, who has been idolized all most from the start of the season as the man who was going to better Maurice Richard's record of 50 goals in a season.

TWO RACES

In effect, Geoffrion has turned the Montreal-Toronto feud into two separate races—the fight for first place and the battle between himself and Mahovlich.

Both teams have games left to play, including a meeting next Thursday in Montreal that could decide the whole thing. Montreal's other games are against Chicago (twice), Boston and Detroit, while the Leafs play Boston twice and New York and Chicago once.

BELIVEAU GAINS

And a third race is going on in the Montreal-Toronto feud. Geoffrion had an assist last night to bring his leading point total to 79, but teammate Jean Beliveau gained a point on him and moved past Mahovlich into second place with his 29th and 30th goals and three assists for a total of 83 points.

Canadians were never headed as they poured in on substitute goals. Jack McCartan and coach Don MacPhee to select a B.C. all-star side to meet England's Birmingham club in Vancouver June 3.

Pete Dawkins, West Point all-American who won fame as a rugby player at Oxford, has announced his engagement to Judi Wright of Washington, D.C.

Pete Dawkins, West Point all-American who won fame as a rugby player at Oxford, has announced his engagement to Judi Wright of Washington, D.C.

Meanwhile Detroit Red

Wings were making sure of fourth place and a playoff berth for the 18th time in 19 seasons by beating the Bruins, 5-2, in Boston. Leading the club, as he has for years, was Gordie Howe with his 21st and 22nd goals of the season.

BRUINS BOOED

A small crowd of 6,619 booed the Bruins often throughout the game.

Detroit's other scorers were Val Fonteyne, Leo Labine, and Norm Ullman. Jim Barlett and Jerry Toppazzini scored for Bruins.

P.E.I. Knocks Off Giants But Alberta Brier Leader

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CALGARY (CP) — An accountant, two clerks and a machinist, with an average age of 24, Thursday toppled Saskatchewan and Alberta at the Canadian curling championship, creating the slim possibility of a playoff today for the title.

Doug Cameron, 27, and his young Prince Edward Island teammates had nothing to win except satisfaction after three earlier losses in the 11 draw round-robin competition, but they calmly whipped previously-unbeaten Alberta 11-7.

the final end. Keys had ordered and received two guards in front of the house and Werner cleared them both, his own rock drifting into the eight-foot circle. After that the play took place in the house and the match was back on Gervais' terms.

PERFECT DRAW

Saskatchewan had to play for the perfect draw and Alberta with a series of raises and nudges, each time took the Saskatchewan rock out.

Keys finally was forced to abandon the draw and on his last rock tried for a double knockout of two Alberta stones shielding the button. He took one but left the other and Alberta picked up the single.

Vic High Girls In Hoop Semis

VANCOUVER — Victoria High School advanced to the semi-finals of the B.C. high school senior girls' basketball championship here yesterday, winning its first two games.

Faced by Mary Pearson with 14 points, the Vics upset defending champion Kamloops, 34-24, in their first game. Kamloops had been a heavy favorite to pick up its second straight title.

Then Vic High outfought Burnaby South for a 29-24 decision last night to reach the semis. Miss Pearson was again high scorer with 17 points and Louise Mason added 10.

Semifinals in the championship round will be held tonight and the finals Saturday night.

Golden Gloves Card Boasts Island's Best

The finest young boxing talent in Vancouver Island will be on display at Central Junior High School Saturday night when the Sertoma Boxing Club of Victoria stages the annual Golden Gloves tournament.

A total of 12 bouts, featuring fighters from Sertoma, Colwood, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Salt Spring and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, are planned with the possibility of at least one more bout being added. First fight starts at 8 p.m.

In the other, Sertoma's talented Tommy Black meets Bruce Balda of Chemainus in a featherweight bout.

Two fights may prove to be the outstanding events on the card. One puts Skimp Williams of Chemainus against Danny McDonald of PPCLI. The two have met twice and each has won once.

Grade Grouping Try-Out Urged on City School Board

Chant Recommendations Could Be Tried Out

By IAN STREET

Greater Victoria school board last night was challenged to try some of the experimentation suggested by the Chant royal commission on education.

G. Reid Elliott, professor of economics at Victoria University, told a public meeting following an exchange of views between panel members on the proposed removal of Grade 7 from junior high school. "Surely all this is still in the realm of opinion,"

"We have a wonderful opportunity right here in Victoria to try some experimentation," said Prof. Elliott, moderator of the panel which discussed the Chant report at a meeting sponsored by the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council.

Various Groupings

He suggested the local board might experiment with various groupings of grades to determine which system is best. The present six elementary, three junior high, three high school grade system could be retained in one bloc of schools, the moderator said. The Chant report recommendation of seven elementary grades, with three at the present junior high level and two senior high grades, could be tried out in other schools.

"We could try an 8 and 4 split," said Prof. Elliott. "I even suggest the board would be well advised to try Grades 1 to 12 in a single school. All these systems have been used in the past and not without some success."

The moderator was commenting on the wide range of views expressed by panel members on the place of Grade 7 in the present school system. More than 150 people turned out for the discussion which marked Education Week.

Pendulum Swings

Trustee Richard Reeve said there was nothing "absolutely new" in the whole Chant report. He said Grade 7 was in elementary schools when he attended them, then several years ago became part of junior high. He added: "Now the pendulum has swung back and I don't think it will create too much of a problem in the minds of students — unless we put it there."

Walter Kitley, principal of Sir James Douglas Elementary School, said while there are both advantages and disadvantages attached to the proposal to put Grade 7 back into elementary school, he could not support the seemingly popular idea "this would be a cure-all for juvenile delinquency, bad breath and all the rest—that's nonsense."

The principal said he was most concerned over the possibility that Grade 7 would remain in junior high, but on an elementary program, thus, in effect, getting the less desirable aspects of both systems.

Sparked a Debate

The question of whether students in vocational school under the new system recommended by the Chant commission also sparked a lively debate.

Mrs. Irene Byers, president of the local P.T.A. council, said parents shouldn't look on vocational school as "something degrading or lowering." She added: "Many parents know some of our children are not going to become professional people, but we also know they are not stupid and skilled technicians will be more than ever in demand in the future."

Mrs. Barbara Russell, Vancouver, representing the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, said parents need have no worries under the new system "if you have a superior child."

Superior Child

"This is a program for the superior child," she said. "If you have an average child, however, then I think you need to be familiar with what the commission has recommended."

Mr. Reeve disagreed with her views and said the Chant report contains no reference to the fact "that one type of intellect is any better than any other—it just says they are different."

Mr. Kitley said: "I don't like the idea of getting into vocational school by failing everything. Regardless of what my employer, Mr. Reeve has just said, I think there will be a stigma."

Orsova to Stop Off Victoria

The 29,000-ton P & O-Orient liner Orsova will stop off Victoria about 11 a.m. Tuesday to pick up pilot, customs, immigration and health officials. The ship arrives in Vancouver at 4:30 the same day from Sydney via Auckland, Suva and Honolulu. She will disembark 400 of her 850 passengers in B.C.

33 Shots Fired

Help Trap Sniper Police Ask Public

Police last night called on the public to help them track down a silent sniper who fired 33 shots at four city stores overnight Wednesday.

The request was made by Det. Inspector Charles Webb who appealed to everyone to watch for anyone carrying a gun after dark. All shots were fired by a 22-calibre weapon, which detectives believe may have been stolen Wednesday night from Gar Taylor Sporting Goods, 917 Fort, or about two weeks ago from Carmichael's Bicycle Shop, 829 Fort.

Windows were shattered in the Safeway store in Fairfield Plaza, Henderson's Low Cost Food Market, 1783 Fort, Wilkes Furriers Ltd., 1545 Fort, and Fairfield Food Market, 1827 Fairfield.

Shots fired at the Safeway store could have been fired from the parking lot or cemetery opposite, police said, and those at Fairfield market from the school ground across the way.

They are puzzled, however, that no one apparently heard the shots fired in the more thickly populated Oak Bay and Jubilee Junction centres where the other stores are located.

'Whipping Boy'

Criticism of Police Concerns Alderman

Alarmed about possible effects of recent criticism of city police, Ald. Michael Griffin yesterday asked if city council could intervene and was told it could not.

"It would appear," he said, "that our city police are rapidly becoming the favorite whipping boy for the press, radio, TV and the public generally." (Later he said he meant through the press, radio and TV for commentators and the public.)

"If this trend is allowed to continue unchecked," he told council, "before we realize it, all respect for law and order will disappear and our peace officers will be held up to ridicule and scorn, a situation which we would all, I am sure, find most distasteful, for this would lead to anarchy."

He asked if council had power to inquire into actions and decisions of the police commission, to question the commission on its reasons, or to confirm, alter or rescind commission decisions. "I stress the word 'confirm,'" he said.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady, answered that the Municipal Act placed police matters in the control of police commission, and not city council. Council, he suggested, was in a position to exercise some influence, but not authority.

WHITE MAN'S MAGIC: A delegation of seven native Indians from the Nishga tribal council of the Nass River came to Victoria yesterday to press their claims that their lands rights have been usurped by the provincial government.

They were met by clerk of the legislature Ned DeBeck who spoke to them in fluent Chinook—a jargon once used by all west coast Indians from California north to Alaska.

Trouble was the Indians had been educated by the white man. Not one of them could understand Chinook.

SAWN OFF: It was indicative of our present economy, George Hobbs, the six-foot-six inch CCFer from Revelstoke said yesterday, that a carpenter could be paid $35 a day for sitting around in a swivel chair and doing nothing.

CCF leader Robert Strachan, sitting a few feet away in a swivel chair, jumped as if he had been pricked by a pin. He's a carpenter.

Merchants Agree To Ban Slingshots

NANAIMO — City merchants have banded together to stop the sale of slingshots to juveniles.

This action follows a protest by the local Council of Women requesting city council to restrict the sale of "catapults."

Aldermen discovered they were powerless to act upon the request. However, they agreed to support any move that would govern the sale of the weapons.

Since then, Nanaimo RCMP has informed merchants of the penalties they could reap if they supply the weapons to juveniles who later cause damage with the slingshots.

Merchants have now agreed not to sell slingshots to juveniles "under any circumstances."

Other attractions so far planned include a bowling tournament, Miss Nanaimo Ball, Nanaimo Indian band display, a salmon barbecue and a night-time parade of decorated boats.

COURTENAY — A campaign to construct a museum wing at the Courtenay Tourist Bureau will be swung into high gear, a steering committee decided Wednesday.

Official word that donations to the project will be tax-deductible was good news, chairman Ben Hughes said.

More relics, artifacts and documents are held in storage for the museum than Nanaimo has in its famous Bastion. It was reported.

Preliminary canvass of a special names list already has produced pledges for half of the building cost, reports showed.

ALBERNI — A film of Second Arrowmish Troop's 1958 summer camp won top award among documentaries submitted from 26 countries to the world-wide gathering of Scout leaders in Holland last August.

He noted there had been a large increase in tonnage handled and said introduction of bulk milk equipment had increased efficiency of operation.

EASTERN MADNESS: An acquaintance of ours, recently returned from the East, reports there are some most mysterious goings-on in the city of Montreal these mornings.

Seems four or five passengers who arrive at Union Station in the morning start running as soon as they hit the street, stopping every few yards to give a scissor jump or two.

There's a traffic cop waiting for them and he stops everything as they cross the intersection, running and scissor jumping, along the main street.

A few inquiries brought forth these facts. The young men were employed by a nationally-known drug house and the management had decreed that all executive officers must take the air force's Five Basic Exercise plan, part of which calls for a two block run, broken every few yards by the scissor jump.

'Summer High' Ready

DUNCAN — Dave Todd, principal of George Bonner High School at Cobble Hill has been re-appointed principal of the Cowichan Valley summer high school.

Held for the first time last year at Cowichan High School, under the sponsorship of four co-operating school boards, the summer school was widely hailed by educators. Designed primarily to upgrade students who had fallen behind in their work, the summer school also provided courses for students who had been unable to fit them into their regular timetables, and gave others an opportunity to take refresher courses.

In a report to the central planning committee, made up of representatives of School Districts 64, 65, 66 and 67, Mr. Todd said examinations had proven the work of upgrading the academic program of students had been very effective.

BENEFIT TO TAXPAYER

"In many cases," he said, "saving a full school year for the student was achieved with resultant benefit to the taxpayer."

The summer school last year attracted 146 students supervised by a staff of eight teachers.

Dates of the 1961 summer school were set as July 17 to August 18. Two new classes in remedial reading and remedial arithmetic will be established for Grades 4 to 6 and 7 to 9. "Each class will be restricted to 15 students so that teachers may give individual instruction and assistance," Mr. Todd said.

HELP QUALIFY

The committee emphasized that the summer school was not restricted to pupils attending day schools. Last year many parents did not realize that the summer school's function was also to help those who had left school by providing an opportunity for young people to upgrade their

BONNER, STRACHAN JOIN IN BLAST AT LIBERAL CHIEF

Starr, Pearson Cross Swords On Job Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's anti-unemployment program is a massive attack across the whole field of the Canadian economy, Labor Minister Starr said in the Commons Thursday.

But Opposition Leader Pearson described Mr. Starr's speech, at the opening of debate on the labor department's 1961-62 spending estimates, as "ludicrously inadequate."

The two squared off at the start of the session's main labor policy debate, brought on earlier than usual by the House leaders.

Commons leaders had these facts to chew on:

1. At mid-January, unemployment in Canada totalled 683,000, a post-war record for the month and up from 547,000 in January, 1960.
2. At Jan. 31, the Unemployment Insurance fund had a balance of $283,742,150, down from $445,885,387 a year earlier and $916,429,487 at Jan. 31, 1957, when the Liberals were still in office.
3. At March 3, this year's municipal winter works program had provided jobs for more than 100,000 workers, about double the employment provided by the program by that date last year.
4. The labor department's budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year opening April 1 is $136,497,933, of which $102,817,980 is to be voted for the insurance fund.

"Unemployment can only be cured and its consequences arrested by a massive attack across the whole field of the general economy, and this we are doing," Mr. Starr said.

Mr. Pearson replied that the government has failed to face reality in dealing with unemployment.

He said Mr. Starr's general review of the situation was a "ludicrously inadequate way of dealing with unemployment," and the inadequacy was discouraging and disheartening.

UN Note Scolds Kasavubu

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld has sent Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu a sharp reminder that the Congo is pledged to allow the United Nations force freedom of movement on its territory.

The note bears on the impasse created by Congolese troops driving UN forces out of the port of Matadi last weekend.

An authoritative source told reporters Thursday night the reminder was in a message Hammarskjöld dispatched to Kasavubu in Tananarive, Madagascar, where the president and his premier, Joseph Ileo, are seeking a settlement on neutral ground with rival Congolese political leaders.

Meanwhile prospects for a curtailed session of the UN General Assembly, as proposed by United States Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, appeared to be fading because of Soviet insistence on a full-scale disarmament debate.

Important Step: Break Deadlock

LONDON (CP)—The importance of breaking the world deadlock on disarmament was stressed Thursday by Commonwealth prime ministers.

With all leaders except President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana contributing to the discussion, the second day of the Commonwealth conference was devoted in intricate detail to a topic all agreed to be the world's No. 1 problem. Nkrumah will probably speak today.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker emphasized the need to resume disarmament negotiations as soon as possible. He placed clearly on record Canada's opposition to continuing nuclear tests.

There was general agreement among the leaders that somehow there must be agreement on a nuclear test ban at the conference resuming in Geneva March 21.

Millionaire Logger Praises Labor

Labor found a friend in millionaire logger and North Vancouver MLA Gordon Gibson, who last night told the legislature that organized labor had been a great help to him in solving problems when he headed logging companies.

He praised John Squire (CCF-Alberta) who he said sat on opposite sides of the bargaining table from him.

The Liberal MLA said he is fearful of the power that has gotten into the hands of a few concerns. He said he thought some of the big corporations were working against labor.

"Let's get away from monopolies and make more opportunity for more people," he said.

Strong Debate Stirs Legislature

By PETER BRUTON

Liberal leader Ray Perrault was left reeling from a double bludgeoning by both Social Credit and CCF ranks last night and then looked on as the CCF fought the government over labor-management relations.

The Liberal leader was given one of the most bitter callings-downs seen in the legislature for some time over his charges that B.C. had the worst labor-management relations in all of Canada and that investment counsellors were urging their clients not to invest in B.C.

Such an opinion should never have been uttered by a member of the legislature, said Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who termed the charges completely false.

Mr. Perrault had done a great disservice to labor and management, charged CCF leader Strachan, who then turned on both Liberal and Social Credit ranks and said: "A plague on both your houses."

Mr. Perrault began his speech by saying it was about time British Columbians faced facts about the very real crisis of lack of investment capital in the province today. It was simply not coming in as it had a few years ago.

"The government has failed to provide a proper climate of labor-management relations," he said. "No province in Canada has such a bad record."

"That's not true, that's not true," shouted CCF leader Strachan.

INVESTMENT MECCA

The Liberal leader said that from 1945 to 1956 B.C. was the investment mecca of Canada. This province was a choice investment area and there was a tremendous surge forward industrially.

"The situation today is less than enthusiastic in the centres of investment capital," said Mr. Perrault.

Investment leaders were warning capital to stay away from B.C. and it was a basic necessity to create a proper labor plan.

DELIBERATE ACTS

"There have been almost deliberate acts on the part of the government to infuriate labor and to alienate the working man," he said.

If the government really wanted to create jobs it should take those steps that were going to bring about labor-management harmony. This should include a full-time labor relations board, a productivity council, and the inclusion of labor representation on overseas trade missions.

CLASS STRUGGLE

"The situation in this province today is the worst example of the phony class struggle of anywhere in Canada," he stated.

After the Liberal leader had resumed his seat, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he had been forced to take the unusual course of speaking during another minister's estimates.

NOT TO INVEST

It was an "astonishing attitude of superficiality" when the Liberal leader tried to say that investment counsellors were recommending investors not to invest in B.C.

"This is not a fact," said Mr. Bonner, who doubles as minister of industrial development, trade and industry.

"This is not a responsible point of view," he added.

MEMBER OF HOUSE

"This is not an opinion which should have been uttered by a member of this House."

Neither was it true, said Mr. Bonner, that class warfare between labor and management existed in this province. There had, on different occasions, been sharp differences of opinion between management and labor.

"But this does not amount to any extraordinary situation in comparison to any other community in North America," he said. "This is a vast disservice to industry and an astonishing affront to the flow of capital which has been

NANAIMO—Happy pills on the road may mean sad motorists in court, RCMP Staff Sgt. Earl Sarlat of Nanaimo detachment warned yesterday.

Motorists convicted for driving while impaired by drugs face heavy fines, he said, pointing out that even tranquilizers and antihistamines can reduce alertness of a driver and turn him into a speed menace.

The staff sergeant was commenting on a B.C. Automobile Association report that dizziness and fainting spells may result from heavy use of pills.

Brazil Leader's Snub 'Shocks' U.S. Envoys

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Diplomats said Thursday President Janio Quadros turned his back on U.S. presidential emissary Adolf A. Berle Jr., and walked out of the room, refusing his proffered hand, at the end of their March 2 conference in Brasilia.

Berle, Brazilian foreign minister Alfonso Arinos and U.S. Ambassador John Moors Cabot, who were also present, were "shocked" by Quadros' snub, according to the diplomats.

LESS THAN CORDIAL

They said the meeting was "less than cordial," in contradiction of Berle's post-conference statement that he had "a cordial discussion with the president."

In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk insisted that the Quadros-Berle discussion was "extremely cordial and helpful."

According to diplomats here, the group rose to its feet at the end of a meeting, and Berle, preparing to say goodbye, offered Quadros his hand. The president, they said, turned his back to Berle and walked rapidly from the room.
